Cities Seek Mental Home Inspection

Bills For Upkeep Of Insane Prompt Move For Inquiry

Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster Join in Asking Review at Essondale Institution

Relief Officers Meet Next Week

To ascertain for themselves that they will receive full value for their contribution, officials of British Columbia's three main cities will ask the provincial government for permission to inspect the provincial mental home at Essondale. This move was prompted by receipt of bills from the government for municipal contributions toward the upkeep of mentally deficient, as provided in the last session of the Legislature, Mayor David Leeming announced this morning.

A meeting of relief officers and officials of the cities of Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster is being called for next Wednesday morning in Vancouver and it is hoped an arrangement for the inspection at that time.

Mayor Leeming stated the action is not proposed from any idea of criticism, but because it was felt that the municipalities and cities are being called upon to pay a proportion of the costs for the mental home, they should have some idea what was going on there.

Defending Champ in Canadian Amateur Golf Scores 3 and 2 Win Over U.S. Star

Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, Aug. 11.—Sandy Somerville's grand old tournament nerves came through in the pinch to-day and paved the way for a 3 and 2 victory he registered over Francis Ryan, Detroit, to earn the right to continue along the trail toward a Canadian amateur golf championship that would be his fifth.

Stymies were a prime factor in the youthful battle between Stan Leonard, Vancouver's seventeen-year-old aspirant, and Gordon Taylor, Montreal, Taylor came home with a 3-up advantage after twice stymieing his foe for wins on the in-journey and taking four of the last six holes. The putter that gave Stan victory yesterday over Phil Farley, Toronto, would not function to-day.

Will Quinn Jr., from Wallingford, Pa., appeared a certain semi-finalist when he ended the morning 3 up on Jack Nash, former Ontario champion from London, Ont. Quinn's mangle was working like a charm and his many one-putt greens gave the Londoner small chance to stay ahead.

Acting Chief of Police McLellan Advises Merchants and Other Victorians to Be on Look-out; Flood of Counterfeit Fifty-cent Pieces in Vancouver

Acting Chief of Police J. A. McLellan this morning issued a warning to merchants in regard to spurious coins which are being circulated in Victoria, according to reports.

The coins which have been detected are fifty-cent pieces, and although only a few have turned up in Victoria to date, Vancouver storekeepers are having considerable trouble, and there is a possibility efforts will be made to circulate the "queer" money in greater quantity here.

The acting chief suggested merchants be careful in taking coins from customers they do not know.

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Aug. 11.—The 50-cent piece is in a fair way to pass out of use as legal tender in Vancouver until the flood of counterfeit coins of that denomination is stopped.

One large corporation is stated by police to have taken in more than $100 worth of the spurious money.

Victorians Reach Finals in Class Championships; Keen Play Seen To-day

J. F. Fell, Vancouver, and Joshua Green, Seattle, will meet at the Colwood Golf Club to-morrow to decide the 1932 grand champion of the Senior's Northwest Golf Association. In the semi-finals played this morning, Fell defeated J. A. Beyerle, Portland, 1930 champion, 5 and 3 and Green won a bitter battle from J. H. Fuller, Aberdeen, runner-up in 1930, at the nineteenth hole. The final will be over eighteen holes.

Victoria players fared well this morning in the first flight and the class championships, at least one local senior reaching every final and in the "A" and "D" championships all-victoria finals will be witnessed to-morrow.

Green and Fuller put on one of the best matches of the entire match not more than one hole separated the players, Green was one down at the third, the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh holes were halved. A birdie three at the eighth hole.

Shanghai, Aug. 11.—China was a nation virtually at a standstill to-day. Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, former President and virtual commander-in-chief of the army, appeared to be drifting toward the role of fascist dictator, favoring a tolerant foreign policy, especially with respect to Manchuria.

In political circles it was indicated leaders were urgently attempting to solve the crisis resulting from the resignation of Wang Ching-wei, president.

HINDENBURG MEETS HITLER

Nazi Leader Called to Berlin By President to Talk of Cabinet Possibilities

Berlin, Aug. 11.—Adolf Hitler, whose bid for the German chancellorship appears to grow stronger with each day, is scheduled to arrive in Berlin to-morrow to talk with President von Hindenburg.

The President himself, who is reported as wavering in his determination to maintain a non-party cabinet, invited the National Socialist leader to come and talk things over.

Issue of $2,000,000 in Short Term Gold Notes Placed

Cost at Present Exchange Highest in Province's History

An issue of $2,000,000 of 5 per cent two-year treasury gold notes of British Columbia has been placed on the New York market by Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance. The issue has been taken by Ernst and Co. and associates of New York.

The negotiations throughout have been in terms of Canadian currency.

On a basis of New York funds the issue was taken by the underwriters at a price of 99.50, and the cost to the province on the basis of the present exchange situation will be 8.50 per cent, the highest in the history of the province. The issue is reported to be selling to New York investors at 89.50, to yield the purchaser 6.50 per cent.

When announcing placement of the issue, Mr. Jones stated the negotiations had been conducted throughout in terms of Canadian currency, it being his firm conviction that the existing discount on Canadian funds would shortly disappear.

"I am concerned solely with the amount of money I get here and the amount of money I shall have to pay back in two years. If the present condition of the money market were to change in two years we would all have to be somewhere else," Mr. Jones said, expressing satisfaction on the

First Twenty of Doukhobor Prisoners Arrived To-day on Pier Island

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Aug. 11.—Twenty Doukhobors were taken from the Oakalla jail this morning under a provincial police escort to Pier Island, the new prison colony north of the Saanich Peninsula, established by the Dominion Government to house them. All are under sentence of three years on nudy charges.

It is expected the remainder of the 368 who have been in the Oakalla jail for some weeks will be moved as accommodation on the island permits.

Col. R. W. Cooper, warden of the New Westminster penitentiary, accompanied the party this morning to inspect the quarters which have been provided.

It is expected the remainder of the 800 men and women under sentence, now in the Oakalla and Nelson jails, will be taken to their new quarters in numbers of about twenty at a time as accommodation is available. The women prisoners will be moved last.

Government Crushes Uprising In Spain

Monarchist Attempt Crumbles When Gen. Sanjurjo and His Lieutenants Arrested

By Rex Smith, Associated Press Staff Correspondent
Madrid, Aug. 11.—Spain's twenty-four-hour monarchist rebellion was smashed by the government to-day with the arrest at Huelva of its fleeing leader, Gen. Jose Sanjurjo.

The general fled from Seville shortly before 1 a.m., after his revolutionary machine, which captured the government of the important southern city yesterday, had crumbled in front of powerful concentrations of government troops.

Three of his chief officers were arrested with him. Minister of the Interior Claudio Alas ordered the four brought to Madrid immediately.

LIEUTENANTS JAILED

The veteran monarchist leader gave up his fight at Seville, reports said, when his efforts to rally support outside the city failed. The emissaries he sent to nearby towns were reported to have been thrown into jail. The effect on the rebels was demoralizing, added by the early collapse of the revolutionary movement in Madrid.

During the night dozens of army officers who had followed Sanjurjo disguised themselves in civilian clothes and began to steal out of the city.

A white flag had been run up on the government buildings a rebel delegation approached government officials, declaring they had been misled by Sanjurjo and wished to surrender.

The nation was under virtual martial law to-day. Strict censorship covered all dispatches. It was estimated the number of arrests throughout Spain had mounted to 1,000. In all the fighting yesterday ten men were killed and about ninety were wounded.

KIDD REPORT HITS GRANTS

Agriculture, Mine and Land Departments Merger Are Favored By Committee

Conference of Cabinet and Business Men Set For Tuesday

A recommendation that but $87,000 net be spent on the B.C. Department of Agriculture, which it wishes merged with the Department of Mines and Department of Lands in a "Department of Natural Resources" is reported to be contained in the Kidd report which will be discussed at a round table conference of the cabinet and members of the committee Tuesday evening.

This $87,000 would include $5,500 for bee inspection, $20,000 for the larger fair and $25,000 for the Faculty of Agriculture in the University of British Columbia.

This would leave but $36,500 for other purposes.

Grants to small fairs throughout the province are not provided for in the recommendations, it was said. The larger fairs, presumably Vancouver and Victoria, would be the sole beneficiaries.

It is also recommended that agricultural affairs of the province be carried on by market commissioners.

It is anticipated the recommendations will not be received with favor.

CABINET SPLIT RUMORS FADE

British Newspaper Readers To-day Told Canadian Ministry Is No Breaking Up

By THOMAS T. CHAMFION, Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Aug. 11.—Nearly every British newspaper to-day carried another denial from its correspondent that there was serious dissension in the Canadian cabinet.

One free trade newspaperman, however, added the suggestion that, in spite of such semi-official denials at Ottawa, any attempt on the part of Premier Bennett to reduce the Canadian textile tariff would bring the prospect of resignation of four or five of his ministers.

Another correspondent of similar political faith said the belief was growing in Canada among all parties that the domestic outcome of the conference might be an attempt to form a national government in which the liberal leader, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, would take no part.

On the other hand, a labor writer claims to have learned that in the event of an immediate election Premier Bennett would suffer defeat, and therefore if he should lose a minister by resignation he would have to make a new appointment and carry on.

U.S. Car Loadings Are Increasing

Associated Press
New York, Aug. 11.—Signs of a pick-up in railroad traffic became evident to-day with the announcement by the New York Central of an indicated increase in its car-loading requirements for the latter half of August. It was unofficially estimated by the road that its loadings would run from 15 to 18 per cent over the first half of the month.

TRY MUSIC ON FISH FOR RECORD CATCHES

Judging from experiments recently conducted at the Pacific Biological Station at Nanaimo, a robust baritone voice and a net to land the fish may prove the only requirements of a successful angler.

It is possible that all the fishermen of the future will do so to jail gracefully in the boat, strum his ukulele and croon a delectable love song, while his lady friend with a sweep of her dainty arm scoops the enchanted fish into the net.

As the result of its investigations the biological station is able to answer in the affirmative to the oft asked question, "Do fish hear?" It goes one better and says if fish can be trained to associate noise with food they will come rushing to the surface to get it.

like the boys in the army answer the cookhouse call.

The experiments showed rock cod, flounders, sculpins and dog fish gave on consistent signs of being affected by noise. The perch avoided noise, and crowded to the other end of the aquarium. They soon became accustomed to it, however, and seemed to like it. When the experiments made noise the signal for feeding time the perch flipped their tails and came a-running.

"Such experiments," says the technical report on the subject, "indicate the mistake of concluding that fish are insensitive to noise at all times because they happen to show no sign of reaction under certain conditions. When these are altered by making noise a signal for food, a very strong response to sound is readily demonstrated."

VANCOUVER MAYOR AGREES

The mayor conferred with Mayor Louis D. Taylor of Vancouver by telephone yesterday and the decision was made to approach the government for permission to inspect the institution. According to the account received at the City Hall this week for the month of April, Victoria is called upon to contribute $3,000 for the thirty days toward the upkeep of Victoria patients in the home. On the yearly basis this means a sum of approximately $36,000. Vancouver probably would be called upon to pay $100,000.

REASON FOR INSPECTION

Before meeting the charges imposed by the government, full investigation of the list will be undertaken, the mayor pointed out, citing the city's experience in regard to the contribution to mothers' pensions as justification for this action. The city's investigators discovered that a large number of cases on the mothers' pension list were not applicable as Victoria cases and there is a possibility that some of the mental home cases may be in a similar position. The list of names forwarded to the city shows that charges exist for persons who have been in the institution nearly forty years.

The city is called upon to pay an average of $10 a month for 210 patients at the home and it is possible Victoria is charged for some who are not properly a charge upon this city. In cases where persons have come to Victoria for their health and been

IRISH ARE NEGOTIATING

Secrecy Surrounds O'Kelly's Talks on Dispute With Thomas of Britain at Ottawa

Minister, Addressing Senate in Dublin, Declines to Be Hurried By Opposition

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—Interchanges between Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, British Secretary of State for the Dominions and Sean T. O'Kelly, leader of the Irish Free State delegation to the Imperial Conference, continue to be shrouded in an atmosphere of secrecy. That these discussions have been going on practically since the conference began is well known. Mr. O'Kelly and Mr. Thomas have frequently been in each other's company during the last three weeks, while one of the British leaders' favorite diversions has been to engage the Irish delegates in auction bridge.

Linked with these circumstances is the fact that Mr. O'Kelly has had a number of transatlantic telephone conversations with President Eamon de Valera.

In view of the fact that the Free State leader emphatically stated, prior to the opening of the conference, that Ireland would not enter into any trade negotiations with the United Kingdom, the logical but still officially unconfirmed deduction is that Mr. O'Kelly and Mr. Thomas have been continuing in Canada the discussion of an Anglo-Irish situation which was interrupted in London by the departure of Mr. Thomas for Ottawa.

THE NEGOTIATIONS

The Free State delegates are well qualified to negotiate any settlement that might be aimed at. As the right-hand man of President de Valera, Mr. O'Kelly is vice-president of the Executive Council. He has as his colleagues here another powerful figure in the Irish cabinet, Sean Lemass, Minister of Industries. With them is J. L. Dulany, Free State High Commissioner to Great Britain, and J. J. Walsh, Under-Secretary of State for External Affairs. This last portfolio is held by Mr. de Valera himself.

MINISTER'S STATEMENT

Observers here regard as significant the somewhat ambiguous statement made yesterday in the Free State Senate by Joseph Connolly, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. When the Senate opposition directed its attention to the recent "overtures" of Sir Thomas Inskip, British Attorney-General, and Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, and challenged him to respond, Connolly's reply differed greatly in character from the previous statements of Mr. de Valera and Sean MacEntee, Finance Minister.

Mr. Connolly said he did not think it wise to deal at short notice with such important matters as the British ministers' statements. "The situation is being a heated day by day," he added, "and our line of policy is being followed."

Since the situation covered by the Inskip and Simon "overtures" is one that has existed for the last four weeks, the suggestion of "short notice" in delivering replies thereto is regarded here as not convincing. Connolly's statement, however, did not hesitate to deliver answers on the same points several days ago. Especially interesting is Mr. Connolly's observation that "the situation is being a heated day by day."

DOOR OPEN

The interpretation placed on this is that, far from being closed, the door leading to the unravelling of the whole tangled problem is wide open. This interpretation is based on the statement of a member of the Free State delegation here some days ago in which he said that "obviously the inference is being a heated day by day."

CHANGE RELIEF METHOD

Discussion will also centre around Vancouver's decision to change its direct relief system to that adopted by Victoria whereby vouchers for goods are given. The terminal city relief department has functioned as a grocery store but this will be replaced by the voucher system under which a housewife can buy her own goods.

of the executive-yuan and the Nanjing cabinet. Without warning, Wang, Chiang-wei, whose post was almost equivalent to that of Premier, quit last Saturday. He gave as his reason the misadministration of affairs in North China, coupling with it a withering attack on Chang Hsiao-liang, erstwhile Manchurian chieftain now directing affairs about Peking supposedly under Nanjing's direction.

SHARPEST CRISIS

Chiang Kai-shek, instead of assuming the dictatorial role and commanding his one-time subordinates to remain in their respective jobs, telegraphed to Nanjing that he, too, would be forced to resign unless various leaders resumed their duties.

Chiang Kai-shek's action precipitated the gravest crisis within the history of the stormy Nanjing regime. To-day China's government is at a standstill. Wang, Chiang-wei and other members of the Nanjing cabinet are in retirement here.

Stripped to the essentials, the situation is a contest between Chiang Kai-shek and Wang, Chiang-wei, whose views are strongly divergent.

EMPIRE BANK IS ADVOCATED

J. F. Darling of Midland Bank of England Makes Suggestion in Ottawa

Urges Branches Be Set Up in All Countries of the Commonwealth

By Ray Brown, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—Establishment of a super-central Empire bank, represented in each participating country by a local office, was advocated to-day by J. F. Darling, director of the Midland Bank of England and well-known authority on silver. The bank, Mr. Darling stated, should commence operations with a fund of approximately $100,000,000 allocated to each participating country as agreed on. This fund would be increased annually by 3 per cent over the preceding year.

In a brief memorandum on Empire co-operative credit and silver, followed up by a newspaper interview, Mr. Darling went into his proposed plan. It was taken up by the Midland Bank of England and well-known authority on silver. The bank, Mr. Darling stated, should commence operations with a fund of approximately $100,000,000 allocated to each participating country as agreed on. This fund would be increased annually by 3 per cent over the preceding year.

TREASURY BONDS

Mr. Darling dealt with the method of creating the fund with which the great institution would function. The credit, he stated, would be backed by each member government depositing with the bank its obligations to repay its share of the credit in gold at the end of the year. These government undertakings would take the form of treasury bonds ultimately payable in gold. By the very nature of the operations of the bank, payments would hardly be called for, but the bonds would have the force and value of a gold security.

TO SETTLE BALANCES

The credit balance at the bank thus created would be used to settle balances of payments between the member countries and as a basis for local currencies, for which purposes it would be considered the equivalent of gold. Mr. Darling stated.

NUDISTS NOW ON ISLAND

To prevent the possibility of a shortage of water during dry season on Pier Island, site of the penal settlement for law-breaking Doukhobors, off the northern end of Saanich Peninsula, two new wells have been sunk to the underlying sandstone, and an abundant supply of good water is obtainable. It is announced by officials of the Federal Public Works Department.

When the island was taken over by the government it contained several good areas of which approximately 200 acres are suitable for agricultural lands, and at the present time about forty-five acres are cleared and have been cultivated. The island is easily approached by water and a suitable wharf has been built, at which steamers are calling. The present buildings, including wooden frame buildings to accommodate guards, male prisoners and female prisoners, and are so arranged as to entirely enclose the island. The compound of buildings is surrounded by a compound fence of barbed wire, ten feet in height, enclosing large areas which will provide room for exercise grounds.

Loan in New York Made By Province

success of the government's re-entry into the New York market. The Minister of Finance expressed the opinion it was proper to disregard the province's situation and to view the venture into the New York market as most successful. He set forth the following reasons: "The province's situation is a premium, in Victoria, of $110,000. This is enough to pay the interest for the first year, and if exchange rights itself, will leave the province still $10,000 to the good. The loan will cost only 2.16 per cent if Canadian money recovers parity and this will be the cheapest money British Columbia has ever borrowed."

DANGER TO OUTSIDERS

One of the obvious risks at the present stage of the conference, as The London Times in a leading editorial to-day, was that outsiders might be misled by the general impression that further concessions on the part of the British government were being made.

DIFFERENCES EXPECTED

"There is no need to take too seriously the opening speeches seriously. The London Times in a leading editorial to-day, was that outsiders might be misled by the general impression that further concessions on the part of the British government were being made."

ON LOWER LEVEL

The Manchester Guardian, traditional organ of independent Liberalism, struck out along different lines: "Ottawa," said the Guardian, "must be a bad disillusionment to those who took the opening speeches seriously. Within a week of the date on which the conference should close, the guiding star of faith and hope has mysteriously disappeared, a lower level of metaphor is now in vogue, phrases about poker parties, horse dealers and humbug being bandied about."

EXPERTS INTERESTED

The return of the British Columbia government to the New York market was the subject of much discussion this morning. The issuance of short-term notes, redeemable in gold, was particularly noted. It was generally expected that further financing would take the form of a long-term issue.

LONDON CLOSED

To secure further funds, the government was forced to sell $1,000,000 of 5 per cent inscribed stock on the London market. This transaction resulted in a loss of more than $1,000,000 because of the exchange situation. Nevertheless it is understood Mr. Jones would have made a further issue of inscribed stock but for the intervention of the British treasury, which declined to permit the issue to be floated.

Taken as a whole, to-day's message from Ottawa indicates a hopeful feeling, due apparently to the general belief that Premier Bennett was prepared to make further concessions on the part of the British government.

SAYS WRITER'S DEATH SUICIDE

At Miami Trial Pilot W. N. Lancaster Says H. Clarke Shot Himself

Associated Press
Miami, Fla., Aug. 11.—Captain W. N. Lancaster, with voice steady and unemotional, yesterday described for a jury what he called the suicide of Haden Clarke on a charge of murdering whom he is on trial.
Previously he had returned a calm
"no" to a point-blank question by James M. Carson, chief of defence counsel, as to whether he had killed the young writer who had supplanted him as fiancée of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Lancaster's flying companion for five years.
"I was awakened by a bang," Pilot Lancaster said. "I thought it was a window. I called, 'What is that, Haden?' I heard a gurgling noise from his bed."
He leaped from his bed, he related, to find blood streaming from Clarke's face, and a pistol lying beside the fatally wounded man.
"Haden, what have you done?" he said was his best recollection of his next words. There was no answer.
The former British army pilot said he and Clarke, after going to bed in their room at Mrs. Keith-Miller's home, had talked at length over their tangled love affairs.
NEAR TEARS
"Haden nearly wept when he told me how their love had grown and about his position at that time with regard to Mrs. Keith-Miller," the defendant said.
"Did you discuss Clarke's past life?"
Carson asked.
"Yes, in great detail, since it had a direct bearing on his love for Mrs.
Keith-Miller. He told me he felt very badly about his situation—confessed he had had lots of affairs, but that this was the first time in his life he had been in love," Lancaster answered.
"He dwelt at considerable length on lack of finances."
For the first time, Lancaster testified, he learned Clarke was not divided.
Lancaster said he had advised the author to tell the whole story to Mrs.
Keith-Miller next day.
"The last thing I ever heard Haden say was, 'Bill, you're the whitest man
I've ever met,'" he said.
Lancaster stated he had fallen asleep at the conclusion of the talk, to be awakened by the shot.

NO BEER BY GLASS

Varicose Veins
Rapidly Reduced Simple Home Treatment That Is Giving Amazing Results
If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start to-day to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so.
Just get an original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any drug store and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required.
After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal.
Moore's Emerald Oil is also a marvelous healing agent. One application, for instance, stops the itching of eczema, and a few applications causes the eruptions to dry up, scale off, and completely disappear. It is equally as effective in barber's itch, salt rheum, redness, and inflammatory skin trouble.
People who want to reduce varicose veins, or get rid of eczema, ulcers, or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. B.C. Drug Limited and leading drug stores sell lots of it. (Adv.)

WHEN FIRE RAZED MONASTERY

While priests, nuns and students struggled side by side with firemen to save sacred relics and art objects, fire almost completely destroyed the monastery of historic Villanova College at Villanova, Pa. Fifty-three persons were injured, and the losses were estimated nearly $1,000,000. The picture shows firemen as they worked from the roof of an adjoining building when the blaze was at its height.

NEW LABORATORY OFFERS SERVICE

Dominion Research Council to Test Fuel-oil Burners at Ottawa

By Ray Brown, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—The handsome, bronze doors of Canada's new National Research Laboratories swung open yesterday evening to 2,000 guests from the British Empire. Between the doric columns of the main facade, lights shone from half-a-hundred windows.
Inside, speeches, talk and laughter echoed down the halls and through the rooms dedicated by Canada to the extension of scientific knowledge.

It was the official ceremony marking the opening of a great national building which for years has been growing to completion on the shores of the Ottawa River. Once again the culmination of a Canadian effort drew witnesses and well-wishers from the far-flung portions of the empire. The Governor-General faced one of the most distinguished audiences which has ever been assembled in Canada.
He pronounced the words declaring the building formally open.
Canada's sister nations' representatives were present as a result of their being in Ottawa at the Imperial Conference. They joined with Lord Beaverbrook in wishing success to the work of developing and extending scientific knowledge and applying it to Canadian and world problems, on which Canada has embarked.

MINISTERS SPOKE
Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, presided. He is chairman of the cabinet committee on scientific and industrial research, and as such, has had much to do with the completion of the new building. Speaking briefly, he called on the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, to address the assemblage. After a short address by Mr. Bennett, the Governor-General, on whom fell the duty of declaring the building open, spoke.
He told of the enormous natural resources in Canada, awaiting development. To the problems arising in connection with these, scientifically-guided intellectual effort should be applied, he said.

Flower time in Canada's "Barren Land" is in July, and the commoner varieties include daisies, buttercups, purple saxifrage, dandelions and Indian paint brush.

Market Outlook Affected By Acknowledgment Opera- tions Are Slow

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, Aug. 11.—Official acknowledgment from Moscow of slow harvesting operations and difficulties in collecting grain confirms reports which have been seeping through to the western grain trade of unsatisfactory conditions in connection with the Russian crop. The recent rise in the wheat market has been attributed chiefly, however, to prospects of a smaller crop than was expected in Canada, and conditions in other countries apart from Russia.

Russian exports of wheat have shown a heavy falling off in recent months, and the extent to which the world wheat situation may be affected by the Moscow report depends in the long run on whether there is a future decline in exports from the Soviet Union.
In grain trade circles there is little inclination to hazard a guess as to this.

A dispatch from Moscow yesterday
said:
A serious lagging in the grain harvest, combined with difficulties encountered by the government in making collections from the peasantry, was officially acknowledged to-day.
Published figures showed that with the end of the harvest period only about three weeks off, 95,465,000 acres, or only 43.3 per cent of the sown area in the Soviet Union, had been reaped by August 5, as compared with 124, 587,500 acres, or 57.4 per cent on the same date in 1931.

The greatest delays in harvesting and collections were found in the Ukraine and in the north Caucasus, the chief producing areas, where a devastating drought was experienced last year.

NEW CHURCH COLLEGE

Winnipeg, Aug. 11 (Canadian Press).
Establishment of a theological college in Winnipeg for the Ukrainian Greek-Orthodox Church of Canada will be one of the questions considered at a conference of clergymen and officers of the Church at Saskatoon August 23 and 25, according to Rev. S. W. Bar-chuk, head of the church, who has just returned from a trip through eastern Canada. The church, he says, needs more ministers.

A league to foster tourist travel to Canada has been organized in Scotland.

NEW PLAN FOR PAYING DEBTS

Alberta Farmers Suggest Set
Price For Grain

Canadian Press
Calgary, Aug. 11.—Special meeting of the Alberta Legislature to deal with the question of making indebtedness of farmers payable in grain at a set price is being urged by the executive of the United Farmers of Alberta.

The special session was first sought by the U.F.A. local of Hanna. At a recent meeting the provincial executive decided on a similar step and passed a resolution that will be sent to Premier Brownlee.
The resolution suggests the price of the wheat to be tendered in debt payments to set at a level "which will force the creditor institutions to stand some of the loss now borne wholly by the farmers."

The U.F.A. executive maintains this would force creditors to shoulder losses due to deflation and would make material reductions in the farmers' indebtedness.
The U.F.A. also plans to protest to Premier Bennett the tariff placed on farm implements, spare parts, which stated to be placing "a heavy burden on the farmers."

Edmonton, Aug. 11.—Premier Brownlee stated to-day he had not received the resolution passed by the U.F.A. executive at Calgary requesting a special fall session of the Legislature to deal with farmers' debts.
Asked if a special session was probable, in view of his remarks when the Legislature was dealing with the Turner Valley gas problem, the Premier said it would not be stated definitely as yet whether such a session would be required.

Exports of British products, £29,

Stiffkey Rector Is Barred From Church

Associated Press
Stiffkey, Eng., Aug. 11.—A notice signed by the Bishop of Norwich, prohibiting Rev. H. F. Davidson, rector of Stiffkey, from performing any church service, was formally affixed to the door of the church yesterday.

The rector was convicted in a church court last month of acts of immorality committed while he posed as a reformer and friend of fallen women.
A copy of the notice was sent to Mr.
Davidson, who is doing his turn twice a night at a Harrogate Vaudeville theatre. He is in vaudeville to raise money with which to appeal his case to the King and the Privy Council. The council will not sit until October.

SEVILLE BUILDINGS BURNED

Seville, Spain, Aug. 11.—Thousands of Seville citizens crowded through the streets shortly before noon to-day and began an organized assault on the homes of monarchists, burning, smashing windows and destroying furniture.
Carrying banners on which were the words "Down with Sanjurjo," the marchers proceeded to the Marquis Quiviel Hotel, where General Sanjurjo stayed before starting yesterday's revolt. They set fire to the hotel and burned it, then proceeded to the Mercantile Circle and the jail, setting both of those buildings afire.
Communists and Syndicalists who were held in jail for political reasons were freed by the surging crowd, members of which boosted them on their shoulders and paraded through the streets.
The crowd moved then on to the houses of a number of monarchists and attacked them.
All rightist newspapers were suspended. Governor Valera cautioned the crowd not to burn the churches, as it was reported the leaders planned.
Governor Valera ordered the arrest of all Civil Guard officers found guilty of "disloyalty to the Republic." He said they would be tried by a summary court-martial.

JOBLESS GO TO HARVEST FIELDS

Crops Bring Work For Unemployed in Manitoba

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, Aug. 11.—Manitoba harvesting has gone back to the style of the days when western Canada was the mecca of harvesters, and unemployment figures have been substantially reduced in the present month. But no men are coming from the east, for Manitoba still has enough unemployed applied to look after the farmers' needs.
The crop is beginning to move east in quantity.

The number of single men on relief and fed in dining-halls here was reduced by 350 during the last week, according to the Unemployment Service of Canada, which records placing more than 300 on farms in Manitoba since August 1.
The demand for men first started in July, and in that month 628 men were sent out from Winnipeg, as compared with 100 in July of last year.

FARMER ENDS LIFE

Everett, Wash., Aug. 11.—Peter Pro-berg, fifty-five, a bachelor, was found dead yesterday on his little farm on Whidby Island and authorities said he had apparently committed suicide by exploding dynamite caps in his mouth.
On his failure to make his weekly visit to a rural store, an investigation led to finding of the body. Death had occurred about five days before that.
Several farewell notes, written in Swedish, were found in his home.

AGREEMENT IN SIGHT

THERE NEVER WAS ANY GROUND for doubt that the delegations at the Ottawa conference would find some basis of agreement. Otherwise the gathering would have been a failure as complete as the conference of 1930 of which it was a continuation, and that was a contingency which every delegation leader simply had to do his utmost to avert, not only in the interest of the government he represented but, in a wider sense, in the interest of the Commonwealth as a whole. But whether the various agreements which will be reached will be as useful as it is to be hoped they will be or not only time can tell. We shall not know much about the details for some months, because whatever is done at the conference must be submitted to the parliaments of the various Dominions for implementary legislation, and budgetary provisions never are announced before the deliverance of budget speeches. If the agreements be approved by parliaments the acid test of their practical application will then develop and the cold, inexorable trade statistics will tell the rest of the story.

Reports of the basis of agreement between the Canadian and British delegations do not imply that Mr. Stanley Baldwin has conceded anything substantial in regard to Russian dumping. It is said he undertakes to recommend that the British government secure from parliament power to deal with this problem by order-in-council when it shall arise. This, of course, is a long way from a definite, flat-footed engagement to prohibit or restrict Russian imports. What we would call Russian dumping might not be regarded in the same light by the British authorities. It is obvious that Mr. Baldwin will not commit himself to any undertaking which will seriously restrict Britain's trading with Russia, and we doubt very much if he will agree to a definite arrangement which will reduce in any considerable volume Britain's trade with the rest of the world, particularly with those countries in which her citizens have billions of capital investments.

Nor can Mr. Baldwin accept any arrangement regarding food products which would increase the cost of these necessities to the British people. He knows what would happen to the government of which he is a member if he did so. On the other hand, it is difficult to see how he can give the Dominions any preference that will be worth while unless it would involve an increase in the cost of food-stuffs in Great Britain. Tariffs or quotas on wheat, meats and other food imports are sure to increase their price to the consumer. Hence, whatever agreements will be reached on these points—and there is bound to be some agreement—will likely be subject to substantial reservations.

On her side Canada is reported to be ready to give further concessions to British iron and steel. Whether this will involve a lowering of our present duties or an increase in the duties on foreign iron and steel has not been made clear. Mr. Baldwin has insisted that the object in view must be met by a lowering of the Canadian duties to such an extent as will permit the British product to compete fairly not only with foreign articles but with the domestic product as well. He argues, in fact, that this method should be adopted in all preferences given to British imports. He further asks that Canada agree to a definite, permanent tariff policy which will enable the British shipper to know where he stands, instead of our present haphazard system under which a tariff can be changed every twenty-four hours by order-in-council or manipulated by the customs authorities on the spot to suit themselves.

If Mr. Baldwin is handicapped by the hostility of his own country to increases in cost of food, the imperative exigencies of Britain's vital foreign trade commitments, the demands of British agriculture for protection against the Dominions, and the bitter attacks upon him by the Rothemanns and Beaverbrook press, Mr. Bennett has his embarrassments in the pressure exercised upon him by the protectionist members of his cabinet, the big Canadian textile interests, the Nova Scotia coal producers, the iron and steel operators and influential protectionist newspapers like the Conservative Montreal Star and Montreal Gazette, whose antagonistic editorial attitude has been cramping his style in a considerable measure. On the whole, the conference is no bed of roses for either Mr. Bennett or Mr. Baldwin, and whatever may be the agreements they will be able to affect, they and their coadjutors are doing their best to compose a situation which bristles with difficulties. The British Empire is not a logical trading proposition; if it were not something bigger and better than that there would be no such thing as an empire conference, for there would be no empire.

HITLER FOR CHANCELLOR?

ON THE THIRTEENTH ANNIVERSARY of the birth of the German Republic there is the prospect of Adolf Hitler being called to the Chancellorship. President Hindenburg interrupted a holiday at Neudeck to confer with Chancellor von Papen on the subject of how to give the Nazis representation in the cabinet without surrendering to Hitler's dominance. It is said the President is opposed to giving the Chancellorship to the fiery Fascist. But Hitler apparently intends to be satisfied with nothing less.

It has taken but a few days to change the official outlook in Germany completely. Immediately following the election on August 1 the government announced that it would continue to rule Germany and dare the new Reichstag to oust it. This was junkerdom running true to form. Yesterday's dispatches, however, reported that Chancellor von Papen had requested the leaders of the Centrist parties, led by ex-Chancellor Brüning, to meet him to-day for the purpose of discussing their attitude toward turning the most important post in the government over to Hitler. It is suggested that the Centrists may tone down their opposition to the Nazi leader and tolerate him as Chancellor provided all power is not surrendered to his party. It seems to be generally agreed that Hitler as the head of a coalition cabinet, such as he would have to form to survive in his position, would be far more innocuous than he is as the leader of a movement which has no political responsibility. In any event, of course, the Centrists and Bavarians combined will have a following in the new Reichstag of nearly one hundred members and therefore will hold the balance of power.

In the recent election campaign Hitler made many boasts that he would sweep the country and that he and his party would be in complete control of government, that they would run the country as they thought fit. It is quite true that the election of 230 Nazi representatives, an increase of 123 over the membership in the last Reichstag, indicated the strength of Hitler's following. But it also showed that the party vote was very little better than Hitler's showing in the presidential run-off election. Competent observers are of the opinion that Hitlerism has reached its zenith and that there are far too many ardent Republicans in Germany to permit of its strength increasing.

Just as there are sufficient Republicans to defend the Constitution of Weimar, so there are sufficient to prevent any move to restore the monarchy. While the present Chancellor and his "monocle ministry" have declared that there are more pressing problems to engage their attention than the prospect of re-throning a Hohenzollern, they are practically all royalists and would seize the first favorable opportunity that presented itself to displace the present administrative system. In the meantime, the man whom President Hindenburg dismissed from the Chancellorship, Dr. Brüning, finds himself in very much the same position as Mr. Lloyd George did when the first Labor government took office in Great Britain, but with much greater prospects of attracting further support for his moderate policies.

NO LONGER A SECRET

THE KIDD COMMISSION REPORT WILL receive early consideration following Premier Tohmie's return from Ottawa. We assume the Premier has had a copy of this document to read on the train, but if somebody has forgotten to send one to him he will not find its contents either new or startling if he has been following the British Columbia press during his idle moments at Ottawa. This report has long ceased to be a secret. Indeed, it may be assumed that practically all of its conclusions have appeared in the press, particularly in that portion of the press which has its ear close to the provincial government. If Mr. Pattullo, who is entitled to a copy of the report and who would have received it from any other government which has more than a childish sense of its responsibilities, has been collecting the various newspaper "forecasts" of its contents, he knows probably as much about what is in it as most members of the cabinet, and probably more than some of them.

THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA

ONE OF THE MOST INTERESTING records of Canadian business was related in a review which The Times published yesterday covering the century since the Bank of Nova Scotia first opened in a small room in Halifax.

In that far-off day Halifax was a small British naval port of 15,000 inhabitants, "whose muddy streets converged at the waterfront, where seafaring commerce was carried on." But the founders of the institution were obviously men of vision and not afraid of the future of their venture. It is not surprising, of course, that the Bank of Nova Scotia, founded by Nova Scotians, has grown up to be one of the most sterling and prosperous institutions of its kind in this Dominion. The comparatively small maritime province has produced great statesmen, eminent scholars, successful men and women of all professions, and prominent churchmen. It would naturally produce many good bankers—and the other fine banks of Canada undoubtedly have a liberal sprinkling among their staffs of Nova Scotia stock.

The present position of the Bank of Nova Scotia, its high standing with the people of Canada and farther afield, is adequate proof that its direction from its humble and romantic beginnings down through the century of its existence has been of the highest order. In fact the banks of this country in the last two years have been the envy of financial men and depositors in the neighboring republic. While failures over there have occurred by the thousand, the banks of Canada have stood firm as a rock in spite of the world's economic convulsions.

Long after those who are at present directing the destinies of the Bank of Nova Scotia are no more, we may be sure that the 330 branches which now stretch from coast to coast, and those that will be added as the country develops and business increases, will still be carrying on the traditions of the institution which have enabled it to play such an important part in the welfare of the Dominion.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE RAILWAYS
 The Ottawa Journal

Canada's railways are not alone in feeling the depression. Thus the April net revenues of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company were $1,000,000 less than in April of last year, while the revenues of the New York Central in the same month fell off by nearly $2,500,000.

WHY HE REFUSED
 The Toronto Globe

Whatever may be said, and properly said, in endorsement of the refusal of General MacRae of a $200,000 contribution from the Beuharnois Corporation for the Conservative campaign fund, it is unfortunate that the General, in his explanation to the Senate, gave the impression that virtue and high principle were not the only reasons for the decision. He said regarding his conversation with the late Mr. Howard Smith, the company's emissary: "Then followed a discussion, in which I explained to Mr. Smith the position my Leader (Mr. Bennett), supported by his party, had taken in the House of Commons on the Beuharnois project; that, in my judgment, an inquiry into the Beuharnois development was a certainty if we carried the country; that it was patent why such a contribution was not offered; and, in the circumstances, if I were to accept a dollar of Beuharnois money I would be false to my trust."

A THOUGHT

Loose Ends

Concerning nothing but pancakes—and after all, what more can you ask for—up in the clouds where the butter is mixed with snow water by the hand of Jack Mitchell.

By H. B. W.

PERHAPS IT is because I am inherently depraved, perhaps it is because I have been coarsened by long contact with the reading public, perhaps it is because I don't mind telling the truth but, anyway, my memories of places are mostly gastronomical. I could identify almost any place in British Columbia by its food; Kamloops by Wile's lamb chops; Kelowna by the fried chicken of a low dump not far from the lake; Barkerville by its mutton stew; Paul Lake by Mrs. Scott's gooseberry pie; the Alouette Pass by its fried trout; each precisely nine inches long; Hazelton by Mrs. Newick's six desserts at each meal; Quilicum by chump chops cooked on a stick over a beach fire. And so on. The list is almost endless. I could go on making my mouth water for several columns, but I don't want to. The results would be worth my efforts. All I want to convey at the moment is that I have just discovered a new specimen to add to my collection; a magnificent specimen this, all the more valuable since I happened on it unexpectedly and wouldn't believe it at first. It is a new and deep-rooted prejudice. I mean I have discovered pancakes.

DO NOT mistake me and turn away with disgust to read the more elevating columns, but I don't. These, my friends, are no ordinary pancakes, and they are worth a little of your time. As for me, they will forever be connected in my mind with the Forbidden Plateau. I shall never see pancakes again, but I shall think of that magic land of lakes and heather up above Courtenay and, out of respect to the pancakes of the Forbidden Plateau, I shall never again eat the inferior ones which are bred in the heavy, deadening air of sea level. I feel pretty sure such pancakes could not be made at sea level. I know positively that they could not be made by anyone except Jack Mitchell, of Courtenay, without whom to cook and guide and tell stories around the camp fire, no one should think of venturing to the Forbidden Plateau.

I MET JACK MITCHELL and his pan-cakes simultaneously the other night. We had come seven miles that day and seventeen miles on a mountain trail, climbing 4,000 feet in a big day for people like me. We were coming across an alpine meadow just at dusk, Mount Albert Edward over our right shoulder, a white crescent moon over our left. Two deer, grazing in the long, lush grass twenty yards away, which we contemplated only for a while and then walked slowly into the bush. It was just then that I saw the gleam of a camp fire through the trees and an aroma seemed to float from it, a sweet, unearthly smell like those airs of Paradise, which you may smell some day if you are not earthly airs deprived by him a mile filled with some white stuff. This was Jack Mitchell, and he was preparing his magic. He had heard the tinkle of our bell mare coming down the long hill from Courtenay camp, and he was making pancakes for us. I sat down feeling very disappointed, very tired and very empty. I felt that I had been deceived. I had smelled across the meadow was a false and treacherous smell, for if there is anything that I despise and there are quite a lot of it is pancakes. A pancake to me is a flat, spiritless fellow, pale of face, stolid of disposition and with a heaviness about him which remains with me long after he has been eaten. I had come seventeen miles by mountain trail, hanging on to the tail of a horse for support, to come up to the top of the Forbidden Plateau and then to be greeted by a pasty-faced pancake, this seemed more than I could bear on a tired spirit and an empty stomach.

WHEN WE got closer I could see a man crouching by the fire with a great iron griddle in his hand and by him a pile of pancakes, some white and some brown. This was Jack Mitchell, and he was preparing his magic. He had heard the tinkle of our bell mare coming down the long hill from Courtenay camp, and he was making pancakes for us. I sat down feeling very disappointed, very tired and very empty. I felt that I had been deceived. I had smelled across the meadow was a false and treacherous smell, for if there is anything that I despise and there are quite a lot of it is pancakes. A pancake to me is a flat, spiritless fellow, pale of face, stolid of disposition and with a heaviness about him which remains with me long after he has been eaten. I had come seventeen miles by mountain trail, hanging on to the tail of a horse for support, to come up to the top of the Forbidden Plateau and then to be greeted by a pasty-faced pancake, this seemed more than I could bear on a tired spirit and an empty stomach.

STILL, LIFE must be sustained even on the Forbidden Plateau. By the light of the camp fire, in the chill mountain air, I ate one of Jack Mitchell's pancakes, gingerly as a man might tackle a strange Chinese dish. Then a strange thing happened. I can only say that I ate twelve of Jack Mitchell's pancakes and would have eaten twelve more if it hadn't been for his beefsteak, his hash and his bacon. And the next morning I did the same thing again. I fully expected to die, to perish there on the rim of the Forbidden Plateau, but I thought the pancakes were worth it. But instead I lived with a new fervor, a new gusto which carried me for miles over the Forbidden Plateau and will survive long enough, I hope to carry me back there again some day.

I LIKE to watch an artist at his work. I mean a real artist, a painter, a carver or a teller of tales. Jack Mitchell is such an artist, but his pictures are painted in a frying pan. His poems are writ in flour. See how he mixes the batter, how he warms the pan to a sizzling heat, how he drops the batter with a deft twist of his spoon, how he turns the pancakes over with a single flip just at the right moment. Then taste the rich, brown flavor of them, the airy lightness of them, the crispness of their outside, the meaty goodness of their innards. Taste them, but do not expect to find them anywhere else. They can be made, only with the thin air of the Forbidden Plateau to raise them, with the crystal snow water of the little alpine lakes to moisten them, with the deft hand of Jack Mitchell to turn them, with the long experience and ripe wisdom of Jack Mitchell to season them.

THIS, YOU see, is no ordinary chef, no mere cooker of food or maker of camps. Jack is an artist and yet something more than an artist; a poet, rather, I would say. Into his cooking goes more than mere skill. Something of the out-of-doors, something of what he has found out of forty years in the bush goes into the spirit of the Forbidden Plateau goes into it. You realize, as you sit about the camp fire that when a seventy-foot log dropped on Jack Mitchell a few years ago the world almost lost a good fellow but, what would have been infinitely worse, because such creatures are so scarce, it would have lost a superb cook. There are plenty of good fellows but not many men who can make pancakes. I mean pancakes what are pancakes.

SINCE THE BIG log fell on Jack and dealt him injuries sufficient to kill ten men he can work in logging camps no more and he cooks instead for people who go to the Forbidden Plateau. You shouldn't go there without him or you will miss half the fun. You will miss the pancakes and you will also miss strange tales around the camp fire at night; of Jack Mitchell's pet bull elk which lives in a certain meadow not far off and is almost as tame as a dog; of the day Jack Mitchell shot five crows within half an hour of old trapping days when Jack Mitchell and his partner had an imperial quart of pre-war rum hidden under the floor of each of their nine cabins just in case of emergencies, which seemed to happen every night; of the three-legged deer which used to roam about these hills as spry as a cat; of the four-legged brother of the little caches of tea and sugar and jam which Jack Mitchell has strewn about the entire countryside in hollow trees so that he can always get a meal when he wants it. Yes, assuredly you should let Jack Mitchell, of Courtenay, guide you about the country and then you will miss none of the scenery.

YOU WILL FIND the hidden wonders of the Forbidden Plateau. But more important than that, you will discover the unsuspected miracle of the pancake.

KRISHNAMURTI'S APPRECIATION

To the Editor:—Krishnamurti has asked me to convey to you his sincere thanks for the very readable account of his lecture and the accurate manner in which his remarks were reported. He said that he had never received better treatment at the hands of the press anywhere than that which had been accorded to him in Victoria. Most reporters tend to play up the sensational and more personal aspect of a visit but he regards that as quite unessential and is gratified when his message, which he does regard as important, is faithfully presented to the reading public.

It is because of that fact and because he was so pleased with the fairness of your report that he requested me to thank you for it.

GOVERNMENTS AND RAILROADS

To the Editor:—Replying to "Moby Dick" and to Mr. Dougall's tirade of the 7th inst. To be quite fair to all provincial governments, irrespective of party, it is to be remembered that the present deficits they are all showing is the culmination of some twenty or twenty-five years of constant borrowing. At present there are few incomes to tax, decrease revenue from lumber and mines and other sources, but the interest and sinking fund outlay has to be met as usual. This condition is a result of our administration to be the present provincial government for the whole show. While the Tohmie administration has been guilty of a lot of stupidity they have not had to face the consequences that the previous administration did.

Referring to Mr. Dougall's somewhat ambiguous comment on my assertion that the Railway Commission has been ill-advised by Sir Henry Thornton and his staff when throwing away millions on wasteful and profitless competition, Mr. Dougall says: "Does it not spell inefficiency for our administration to be led by such culpable incompetency?" As we are discussing conditions which occurred in the MacKenzie King regime, Mr. Dougall is not very complimentary to the Liberal Party. It is agreed that we have, as Mr. Dougall terms it, uncontrolled intelligence in Canada to constitute a royal commission to investigate the railway scandal, but (and another big but) would Mr. Dougall accept their verdict without a bitterly partisan attitude?

I am afraid he would not, hence the appointment of a board of experienced railway heads is not an act of inefficiency or extravagance, but the only way to ascertain the cause of the trouble and suggest a remedy. As a Victorian and a Canadian, I am willing to accept their verdict, no matter what it is, as they have data and facts before them that neither Mr. Dougall or myself know very much about. I agree with your correspondent that we must not impose any further upon your columns on this particular question, as its ramifications are almost endless. One final comment, Mr. Editor, which both "Moby Dick" and Mr. Dougall have asked about, viz., what do I think of Sir Henry getting $100,000 in lieu of a life pension of $20,000? Dickey Sam thinks very little about it, and a great deal less of the former government who agreed to pay such a pension.

"DICKEY SAM."

SALMON BITING ALONG COAST

Encouraging Reports For Fishermen Come In From Vancouver Island Resorts

Spring and Coho salmon are being caught plentifully all along the Coast from Victoria to Campbell River, according to reports received from up-Island resorts and returning fishermen by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

Springers from twenty to forty-six pounds and Cohos from eight to fifteen pounds have been caught this week. The trout fishing is reported good at Puntledge in Courtenay, at Campbell River, Buttle Lake, Comox Lake and Sprat Lake. A large number of sea-run cutthroats are being caught in Oyster River and off Comox Harbor.

Black bass are not so good this week owing to the cooler weather, but sea bass are providing good sport off Victoria Harbor and from the Breakwater and also in Saanich Inlet.

NEW COMEDY AT CAPITOL

"Million Dollar Legs," With Jack Oakie in Leading Role, Opens To-day

Opening to-day at the Capitol Theatre is Paramount's Olympiad farce, "Million Dollar Legs," said to be one of the funniest pictures ever filmed. Not even the various comedies in which the Four Marx Brothers have appeared, reach so high a pinnacle of sheer, nonsensical buffoonery as does this picture, according to advance reports.

It is laid in the mythical Republic of Klopstok, where all the girls are named Angela and all the men George; where it is a jail offense not to kiss a pretty girl; where the runners are so fast that they trip over frightened rabbits and have to hurdle feeling deer; where all women are so beautiful that all the men find it totally impossible to keep their minds on their work—except the president, who is a woman-hater.

Jack Oakie, as the "clown prince," is the man who leads Klopstok to a thrilling victory in the Olympics. W. C. Fields, Andy Clyde, Ben Turpin, Hank Mann, George Barbier, Hugh Herbert and little Dickie Moore have been entrusted the rest of the comedy.

EVENT AT NEW LABORATORIES

Research Buildings Extension in Ottawa Formally Opened

The Dominion laboratories of the National Research Council at Ottawa are now prepared to test oil burners for domestic and industrial use, according to advice received yesterday by Hon. R. H. Pooley, acting Premier, from Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the National Research Council. When announcing the new Canadian service Mr. Pooley intimated that appliances not approved will hereafter be removed from use in British Columbia, on grounds of public safety.

Provision of the new facilities means that Canadian oil burners and similar types of equipment, which hitherto had to be sent to Chicago for test, to comply with fire underwriting and other regulations, can now go through an all-Canadian channel to win certificates of approval that will be accepted on the Canadian side of the line.

Full particulars of the requirements of the Canadian research tests may be obtained from Dr. Tory or through J. A. Thomas, British Columbia fire marshal, Vancouver.

CANTEEN FUNDS INVESTIGATED

Army and Navy Veterans Approve Appointment of Commission to Hold Inquiry

Major J. Eades Ward occupied the chair. The commission will investigate the advisability of investing funds in mortgages and will make a thorough check on the handling of the funds.

The next conference of the Army and Navy Veterans will be held in Vancouver, it was announced. The Federal Government was strongly censured for its recent pension cuts.

MURDER STORY AT COLUMBIA

Behind the newspaper accounts of most big crimes are stories more thrilling than those which find their way into print.

Linden is seen as a young reporter who stumbles on to a double murder in a desolate country roadhouse where he and his sweetheart take refuge from a storm. With the instinct of the true newspaper man, his first thought is to get the story, regardless of danger. The adventures that befall him in accomplishing this end and in building up the tale through the assumption of guilt for the murder provide some of the most exciting entertainment ever brought to the screen.

DOMINION THEATRE

With Claudette Colbert as the woman who married in haste, and Clive Brooks as the husband she loses and regains, "The Man From Yesterday" provides two fascinating personalities for audiences at the Dominion Theatre.

The story, reminiscent of the famous Tennessee classic, Enoch Arden, is modern, dealing with persons and events in the capitals of post-war Europe.

Brooks, a British officer, marries Claudette after a whirlwind courtship during a leave of absence in Paris. The whine and blast of bombs are heard as they become man and wife in a speedy ceremony in the cellar of a ruined building. Their honeymoon is spent in a taxicab. Several hours later, Brook bids his bride farewell to return to duty on the battle-line. Several weeks later, Claudette reads the news of Brook's death.

Later, she falls in love again, only to find her war husband in a veterans' hospital.

Crossroad, entertained at dinner on Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. F. Freeland of Portland, Oregon. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Guy, Mr. and Mrs. H. Clog, Misses Gladys Guy, Maud Davies, Phoebe Clog, Messrs. Harold Andrew, Alf. Langridge and Max Nettleton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dames and Mr. and Mrs. L. Holyoak of Victoria spent the week-end at Henderson Bay.

Miss Joan Hodgson, who has been spending the past two years at school in England, has returned to her home at Mount Newton.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Freeland, Miss Maud Davies and Max Nettleton left on Thursday for Portland, Oregon, after spending a holiday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Freeland, Stelly's Crossroad.

"MANSLAUGHTER" AT PLAYHOUSE

Claudette Colbert, Paramount film star, featured in the Playhouse Theatre attraction for the last part of the week, "Manslaughter," is bi-lingual—she speaks English and French with equal fluency.

The feminine lead of "Manslaughter" was born in Paris, but when only six years old, her parents brought her to the United States. At that time, she did not speak a word of English. The public schools of New York soon taught her.

However, so that she would not lose the use of her native French, Miss Colbert's parents insisted that she speak French at home.

ROMANO THEATRE

Ken Maynard, whose latest western for Tiffany Productions, "The Pocatello Kid," is now playing a three day run, at the Romano Theatre, started out in a rodeo, graduated to a movie actor and, last but not least, is an expert airplane pilot. Flying, in fact, is his favorite hobby and when they are on location he flies to and from his home each day.

Despite the fact that he is just as daring in a plane as he is on a horse, he has had remarkable few crashes. One of the reasons for this is that he is about as good a flier as he is a rider.

EMPIRE THEATRE

"Reserved for Ladies" is now showing at the Empire Theatre. It is a picture comedy, touched by the glamor of European aristocratic life, with a king, a countess, a duchess and a lot of wealthy commoners—in which the social amenities are humorously twisted. It is truly funny, plausible, ridiculous—satirical, yet amusing.

The star is Leslie Howard, who has frequently appeared on the Broadway stage in the last decade, and who recently appeared opposite Ann Harding in "Devotion," and in many other pictures of distinction.

Crowds Attend Fete In Aid Women's Workroom

Brilliant Sunshine For Party at Mrs. Armstrong's and Mrs. R. W. Gibson's

Over $500 Realized Yesterday; Baby Contest and Other Attractions Popular

As if realizing the urgency of the beneficiary cause, the weather man relented of his uncertain temper of the last few days and provided ideal weather for the delightful garden party held yesterday afternoon in the adjoining gardens of the homes of Mrs. C. F. Armstrong and Mrs. R. W. Gibson, York Place, Oak Bay, and the resultant crowd of nearly a thousand visitors left behind them over $500 which will be devoted to the women's workroom funds.

The affair was an unqualified success from every point of view, the gardens being among the most beautiful in Victoria, and throughout the afternoon the terrace at Mrs. Gibson's home was thronged with spectators who sought this vantage point from which to obtain the magnificent panorama of tree-girt landscape, sea and distant Olympics.

RED CROSS SHOP NEEDS ORDERS

Lieut.-Governor Impressed With Work of Disabled Veterans

The Red Cross Workshop is badly in need of orders to keep going the thirty-seven disabled veterans who comprise the staff. The Red Cross Workshop paid out a total of $30,000 in wages, and with materials purchased and other necessary expenses, have an aggregate of seventy-five cents per item of work.

The baby show was a popular feature and the judges, Mrs. B. R. Philbrick, Mrs. Scurrah, Mrs. Alex. Gillespie, Mrs. C. J. Prior and Miss Finch, found their task no sinecure. After the ballots had been cast the prize for the prettiest baby was awarded to Pamela Newton, child of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Newton, Victoria Avenue.

The other prizes were awarded for the fairest baby, Margaret Turner, dark-haired baby, Shirley Wise and Sidwell, mother and baby, Mrs. Pyper and Ida G. Pyper.

Miss Dorothy Bird's demonstration of the technique of the new school of dancing, and her graceful interpretation of a valse by Greig, drew many spectators to the tennis court. The many guests wandered through the formal gardens, the rose garden and the delightful view over the Lagoon.

B.C. PLAYWRIGHT OFF TO ENGLAND

Toronto, Aug. 11.—William S. Atkinson, giant homesteader from Vernon, B.C., is on his way to England seeking preference on artistic lines—Canadian humor as expressed in "Glorious Hole," a comedy of which he is the author.

Already successful in western Canada as the author of "So this is Canada," which outstripped any other play for a consecutive run in Vancouver, Mr. Atkinson is hopeful of placing his play, which is built around the Canadian Scottish in the War.

The McGill meteorologist requires the fine, sensitive golden hairs for his phone calls about the weather. The hair of brunettes is too coarse.

A RECENT BRIDE AND GROOM

Mr. and Mrs. John May (nee Hedley), whose marriage was celebrated on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Knight, David Street.

Pitching Horseshoes Seems to Be Provincial Sport

By ARCHIE WILLS
Times Staff Correspondent

Southern Ontario is certainly blessed with a lovely countryside. One who travels along the main line of the C.P.R. which skirts the north shore of Lake Superior and sees nothing but rocky, barren country, gets a very bad impression of this magnificent province. But take a train running out of Toronto through the Niagara Peninsula or in the other direction through the territory adjacent to Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River and you see scenes that cannot be duplicated anywhere else in this Dominion.

Rural Ontario comes as near the English countryside as anything we have in Canada. There is orderliness here, the farms show signs of cultivation for upwards of a century, machinery is not left scattered about as it is on the prairies, cattle loiter about near the little streams, large, spreading trees dot the landscape; there seems little anxiety on the part of the people and substantial homes and farm buildings adorn most farms with here and there the remains of an old log house which has withstood the ravages of time.

Many Victorians know this part of Ontario and will recall towns mentioned along this route; some of them no doubt had their beginning in their neighborhood.

After leaving Ottawa you are struck with the herds of Holstein cattle. Everywhere you look there are the black and white cows. The Holstein, because it is a heavy milk producer, has long been favored in Ontario, but there seems to be a disposition to bring in the Jersey.

We made a stop at Sydenham, which is a quaint little town. The main street is a winding one, covered with large elm trees. It brought back memories of the countryside of Surrey, particularly around Witley where the boys, during their training there, used to walk the temporary sweethearts through the delightful country lanes that had a covering of elms.

DARNING STOCKINGS

As our engine pulled out of Sydenham there sat on a doorstep one of the young belles of the village, darning stockings. This was rather an unusual sight for the passengers and they all took a second look. We did not know whether to attribute the darning to the young woman or to the fact that Ontario mothers still insist that their daughters have a good understanding of domestic life. Ontario wives, so the story goes, are the best in the land. That undoubtedly is open to debate, and you can get an argument any time you want on it in Ontario.

We then swept through Napanee, where a large factory makes dog, pig, and another furniture, through Belleville, over the Trenton River and its locks and into Trenton Junction. It was surprising how little inconvenience there was at the stations. Apparently here the arrival and departure of a train means nothing. On the prairies there is always a crowd on hand. The new highway parallels the train tracks in this part and you get an indication of why the railroads are losing so many passengers. The highway is crowded with cars buzzing along at fifty miles an hour, when they can get an opening. The trains carry very few passengers. Building of highways in close proximity to the railroads is just cutting the throat of the railroad dividends. I did not see one auto that could keep pace with this train. The roadbed here, the old Grand Trunk, is in superb condition, and the train hits sixty miles an hour or better on long stretches. There are few bad curves. The motor cars try to step along with the train but they are outdistanced. Even on this highway there are bends and it is hard to keep a car going at sixty for more than a few hundred yards.

WORLD'S BEST APPLES? As we reached Brighton which, however, has none of the gaiety of the Brighton in England, we saw the famous orchards start to stretch out. They were on both sides of the track until we got into Coburg. People here are always content that their apples have no rivals in the world, but then they do not eat anyone else's, so you cannot be too hard on them.

At Coburne the only sign of life was a cute little girl in beach pyjamas gathering fragments of coal scattered in the cinders around the depot. This was another indication of the well-known thrift of Ontario's rural communities.

munty, with subways and double lines of street car tracks. The motor car industry, although quiet now, has increased Ontario's population considerably during the last few years. The city is quite old, as evidenced by its dingy brick station, which looks quite out of place in such a progressive community. However, I do not suppose there will be much chance of Oshawa getting a new station with conditions on the railroads in such a sad way.

THOROUGH FARMERS
Bowmanville, with its long rows of celery as straight as if an Imperial sergeant-major had dressed them, is a revelation. These farmers do their work thoroughly, and must have had time. Port Hope gave a passenger to the line.

Then you hit the dirty suburbs of Toronto. It is like coming into an unkempt backyard. Toronto has many beauty spots, but you do not see many of them from the train. Over the Don River past the abattoirs and then into the Union Station, where much money was spent to give Toronto a depot in keeping with the best on the continent, but which was idle for many years before satisfactory arrangements could be made for its use. The station now is too big for the available business, but if gasoline taxes get much higher it is possible the railroads may come back into their own.

An interesting sidelight on life in Ontario is the amount of time spent in pitching horseshoes. It seems to be a provincial pastime. Everyone seems to have a horseshoe pitch and, despite warm weather, the folks gather around and pitch and then take their turn on the side-lines.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

IS THUMB SUCKING A GRIEVOUS MATTER?

Most of the bad habits which afflict children would tend to disappear were it not for the mother's attitude toward them. It is quite natural for a great many babies to put thumbs or fingers into their mouths. Fearful of the most harmless indulgence, this habit becomes a major crime in the eyes of a conscientious mother. "I'm not going to let my baby develop into a thumb-sucker," says she grimly, and ties on mittens, fastens on splints, wraps the child's thumb in adhesive and by so doing effectively focuses attention right on that most alluring thumb.

Nail biting is another habit that fills the mother with disgust and the determination to end it quickly. The trouble is that preventing a child doing a thing, if that prevention be dramatic and noticeable, as most of it is, never has the results the mother expects. She finds that however persistent she is in thwarting the child's desire he is even more persistent in biting nails or sucking thumbs as soon as the guards against it are removed. Such methods draw attention to the habit instead of drawing attention away from it. And it is the latter course that is much more apt to be successful.

TRACE CAUSE OF HABIT

Instead of gluing one's eyes directly on the habit, look behind the habit for the cause of it. The baby may thumb-suck because he is hungry, he may use his thumb as a pacifier when the bottle is taken from him because it lures sleep. A lack of gain indicates hunger and that baby needs more food. If a thumb soothes him to sleep there is nothing harmful in such mild indulgence. Thumb sucking is harmful only when it is continued through most of the child's waking hours and indicates very plainly a mental dissatisfaction with the child's world as it is. Some of the reasons for thumb sucking and some of the helpful methods of distracting the child from it are outlined in the leaflet, "What to Do for Thumb Sucking."

PERHAPS NOTHING NEED BE DONE

It may surprise some mothers to know that in many cases nothing need be done. Just good, healthy indifference to the habit itself and a real effort to prevent the child bringing such refuge as methods that need the greatest degree of success.

The habit of nail biting may have causes far removed from the habit itself. These are discussed in the leaflet on "Nervous Habits." Both this leaflet and the one on thumb sucking mentioned above are free for the asking. Enclose with each request for a leaflet a self-addressed, stamped envelope to which a stamp is firmly pasted. Bad habits are indications of wrong management of faulty feeding, of unhappy, dissatisfying surroundings. To try to end the habit merely by preventing the child from indulging, without making the least effort to root out the causes results in intensifying his interest in it.

PIONEER SOCIAL WORKER IS DEAD

Vancouver, Aug. 11.—Mrs. John Roland Stitt, aged eighty-three, for more than forty years a resident of Vancouver and one of the pioneer leaders in the city in social service work, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. F. Cotton, West Main Street. The funeral will be held from St. Mary's Church, Kerrisdale, Tuesday at 3 p.m., burial taking place in the family plot in Mountain View Cemetery.

Mrs. Stitt was a native of Montreal, daughter of the late Peter Le Seur of Ottawa, and came to Vancouver in the late 'eighties. She had resided here since, with exception of a short interval spent at New Westminster. An ardent suffragist all her life, Mrs. Stitt worked with the late Dr. Emily Stowe in establishing one of the first women's suffrage societies in Toronto about forty-seven years ago.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

47 Lancia Lou BROOKMAN

CHAPTER XLIII

Dan Phillips sighed heavily. He threw one arm upward, tugged at the covers and, with his eyes still closed, screwed his face into a frown.

For a few moments he lay quiet. Then the glare of bright sunshine was too much for him. Dan stirred, murmuring sleepily, "Cherry—time is it? Cherry—?"

There was no answer. Sunlight continued to stream through the window and at last Dan opened his eyes. He raised himself to one elbow, scowled at the offending window blind that hung at a crooked angle midway of the upper pane, and let out a half-suppressed oath. The next minute he was sitting up, rubbing his head ruefully.

Dan was alone in the room. It was Sunday, seven days after Cherry's departure. Dan's clothes festooned a nearby chair. They were scattered newspapers on the floor and the entire apartment looked out of order.

Phillips rubbed the offending forehead again. He rose to his feet, crossed to the window and pulled at the shade. He did it so sharply that the blind fell to the floor.

"Damn!" the young man ejaculated. It took all of five minutes of annoyed and repeated efforts to get the window shade into place again. When it was done Phillips slumped into a big chair. The hands of the yellow alarm clock on the table pointed to twenty minutes after one o'clock.

His head was pounding. Should have had sense enough not to go out with the gang last night, he told himself. But then, he had had to do something. Brenda was busy with an engagement. He'd intended to join the card game only for an hour or so and then come home to get some sleep. Instead—well, anyhow he felt rotten!

There should be aspirin in the medicine cabinet. Cherry always kept it.

Phillips checked himself and swore again. He had vowed he would not think of Cherry. A girl who could treat a fellow the way she had treated him! Left him flat. Gone away without even a word or a note of explanation. Just disappeared. Anyone else would have been sensible about it. Nowadays marriages and divorces were taken in a matter-of-fact way. Why did Cherry have to throw herself into a state of hysterics and create a scene? Why not admit sensibly that their marriage was a failure (because of her nagging and quibbling and narrow mindedness) and set about arranging a divorce?

No wonder Dan had felt last night that a drink or two wouldn't hurt him. A week ago last night he and Cherry had had that row. He had come home and found her gone. For days he had expected some message from her. Now he knew none would come. She was through with him. All right—if that was the way she wanted it! He'd not make a move to find her. Not a move! A hamper, used for soiled clothing, stood in the bathroom. Dan kicked at it violently. He had sworn he would not think of Cherry again and here he was doing it!

The aspirin was where he had expected to find it. Dan took two of the pellets, dashed cold water over his face and went to the kitchen. He decided to make coffee. There were unwashed dishes piled in the sink and after a look at them Dan changed his mind. He returned to the bathroom and stepped into a cold shower. Then he shaved, dressed and presently left the house.

Dixie Shannon was coming up the steps. She wore a tawny cloth coat with deep cuffs and collar of red fox. Dixie's hat was blue velvet and both coat and hat were new. She carried a prayer book.

"Hi," Dixie greeted him amiably.

"Good morning,"

"Morning?" she laughed. "Maybe it's morning to you but my watch says 2:30. I've been out for hours—even went to church!"

Phillips was not inclined for conversation. He moved slightly as though to continue on his way but Dixie remained squarely in the middle of the lower step.

"I haven't seen anything of you or Cherry for a week," she went on. "Is Cherry upstairs now? Guess I'll drop in."

The young man's expression did not change. "You won't find her," he said curtly. Some explanation seemed necessary and he added, "Didn't you know? Cherry's gone for a little trip. Visiting relatives. She won't be back for some time yet."

"You mean—Cherry's gone?"

"Why, yes. I thought probably she'd told you. Left a week ago."

"For goodness sake!"

Her tone of voice annoyed Phillips. He mumbled something about an engagement and would have brushed past but the girl stopped him. Dixie's eyes widened.

"Dan," she said anxiously, "there isn't anything wrong, is there? I mean you and Cherry—?"

"Of course not!" He snapped the words out. An instant later Phillips was hurrying down the street, his expression as dark as his thoughts. Meddling women! Always nosing into other people's affairs. There was bound to be talk now. Why did he have to meet Dixie Shannon, of all people, to-day? Gave her Shannon the hint of scandal and she'd stay with it until she'd dragged out the truth. What made her think there was anything wrong between Cherry and himself? And whose business was it if there were?

The aspirin hadn't seemed to help his head. Dan plodded on angrily, reached the corner just too late to catch a street car. He fumbled in his vest pocket, discovered he had cigarettes but no matches.

Damn everything! What a day!

They stepped from the cab and Dan handed the driver a bill. Brenda Vail, half-turning, said, "Are you coming up?"

"Don't mind, do you?"

She smiled. "Of course not! Only you really must stay so long as you did the last time. Dear, I've letters to write."

"Letters? Last night you had a mysterious engagement and to-night it's letters. Say, Brenda, you're not trying to get rid of me, are you?"

"Silly boy! How can you even say such things? Besides, it's your fault if I've neglected my friends so long they must all think me dead! You know that, don't you?"

She smiled and to the young man that smile seemed the utmost of devoted tenderness. They were inside the building now. The elevator bore them upward, stopped, and a minute later they were entering Miss Vail's apartment.

She stood still, letting Dan remove the luxurious fur wrap from her shoulders. Then she moved to a mirror, touched her hair here and there, patting it into the outline she desired, drew a slender gold lipstick from her purse and applied the paste critically.

Dixie's head appeared in the mirror behind her. "You don't need that stuff," he told her. "You're beautiful without it!"

"Compliments always pleased Brenda. She tilted her head backward, looking up at him and smiling through narrowed lashes.

"Do you really think that?" she asked coyly.

"Brenda, you know I do! Suddenly his arms were around her. He would have kissed her but she eluded. "Please, Dan!" she protested. "I've just finished my lips. You'll spoil them!"

"What of it?"

He caught her by the shoulders a trifle roughly, kissed her a dozen times.

"Brenda," Dan whispered, "let's get away from this place! There's nothing to stop us now. Let's go to-morrow!"

She broke away from him. "But you must be mad!" Brenda exclaimed. "You know we can't do that."

"Why not? You said you would—you said we'd go to New York—"

"After we've heard about the play—yes!" she explained patiently. "It would be ridiculous to leave before! You know the letter from my agent said prospects are hopeful. There's sure to be a definite answer almost any day now."

"Any day! You've said that a hundred times. I can't wait for 'any day' to poster. I'm sick of this town and everything in it. I want to get away from here, Brenda. What difference does it make about the play? I'll get a job—I can find one—"

"But the play means so much!" she assured him. Brenda's lashes had narrowed again. "It's you I'm thinking of, Dan," she told him. "You and your future. My dear, you do know that, don't you? We have to do what's best for you."

EQUINE HEROES OF THE SCREENIES

OFTEN PROVE TO BE HORSE ON PUBLIC

By ROBERT GRANDON

Hollywood, Aug. 10.—Not long since, I told how he-men of the western employed no doubles for stunting, but not a word was said about their noble steeds... which, to tell the truth, is a horse of another color.

Watching Ken Maynard return from location just before he flew away to the Calgary rodeo, most outstanding of his caravan was that portion allotted to Tarzan, his beautiful blonde mount. In a special truck, motor driven, Tarzan was carted en route, while two of his understudies occupied trailers.

Tarzan has his understudies... eight of them... but these two know all his tricks... Ken has been buying them for years, since horses of this type either are upstanding brutes or little runts... and he must have material to fill the horse shoes when Tarzan passes on.

Huge water-tanks rumbled along, and a medical commissary with its supplies, veterinary and assistant... and, of course, there were trucks for oats and hay, hostlers and caretakers.

Understudies movie horses is nothing new... Fred Thompson always insisted on a double when Silver King was called upon to do a dangerous stunt... another horse worked for Jedman when Rudy Valentino rode him in "Son of the Sheik"... and stunting horses frequently are owned by stunt men, who will ride no other.

After all, why shouldn't equine stars have doubles? They are far harder to replace than human beings and their injury might entail untold cost in production?

If you are entertaining why not serve some of Hollywood's favorite dishes? Robert Grandon will send you an illustrated leaflet, "Favorite Recipes of Famous Stars" containing these recipes if you will send three cents in stamps and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Adventures of the Sea

During the sea voyage, Captain Thompson and First Mate Brown had been in command, but on the island in the midst of the bones, Dr. Barstow and Mr. Weston had charge. They had studied such bones as these and knew how to take care of them.

Most of the bones were embedded in rock and earth.

"Long ago," said Dr. Barstow, "this must have been a swampy region, perhaps with a pond here and there. At that time, I have no doubt, the island was joined by land to the coast of Africa. The dinosaurs whose bones we find here must have died when they sank into the swamps or into the soft ooze beneath the ponds."

"If those animals sank into ooze or soft ground, how does it happen that we find some of their bones in the midst of rock?" asked Roberts.

"That's a good question," said Dr. Barstow with a smile. "The answer is that the mud became dry and turned into rock. That happened during the course of many thousands of years."

"Were all the rocks made this way?"

"Oh, no! Some were made by volcanoes, and others were made by sand which hardened into sandstone. The rock called limestone was made by millions of shells and bones which were pressed together by Nature."

Just then Allen caught sight of a great skull of a dinosaur. Dr. Barstow touched the skull and remarked: "This belongs to a dinosaur which we call 'Triceratops' or 'Three Horns.' This fellow grew to a length of about twenty-five feet. Other dinosaurs were much longer, but this fellow was thick and heavy. His head, as well as his body, was thick."

"Was he dangerous?" asked Allen.

"Well, he would not have made a gentle pet. Those horns could do plenty of damage when the animal was on a charge. Imagine half a dozen modern rhinos rolled into one, and you will have an idea of this animal in real life."

"My, but he had a big head!" ex-

It was the skull of a dinosaur.

claimed Allen. "I suppose he was very smart."

"You're wrong this time," commented the museum director. "Three Horns was a bonehead, in the exact meaning of that word. This skull contains a huge amount of bone, but it has room inside for only two pounds of brains. With its big body, this animal must have weighed ten tons. The brain was small compared with the size of the body."

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Queer Adventure

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

"Are you all right, Uncle Wiggily? Are you all right?" asked one of the blue birds who had helped hold up the rabbit gentleman's airship so it would not fall too hard when some of the balloons were punctured.

"Yes, I'm all right," answered Mr. Longears.

"Then we'll fly back to our nests," sang a robin. For it was some of her jolly but mischievous little robin children who had bit holes in Uncle Wiggily's balloons with their beaks. Then, the mother bird called many other birds who, with her, helped to keep the rabbit's balloon aloft in the air until it landed gently in a big evergreen Christmas tree.

Away flew the birds glad to have saved Mr. Longears. Now the rabbit gentleman looked over the edge of his basket which was caught on the branches of the Christmas tree.

"Ha! Ha!" he laughed.

"What is so funny?" asked a red spotted Squiggle Bug who was crawling around amid the green needles of the tree, for it had needles, or something very like them, on its branches instead of leaves.

"I was just thinking, Squiggle, 'answered the rabbit gentleman, "that if any one of my little animal boys or girls came along now they would think I was Santa Claus."

"Santa Claus!" buzzed the bug. "What do you mean?"

"Well, I'm in a Christmas tree, am I not?" asked Mr. Longears. "And that's the proper place for Santa Claus."

"Oh, yes, I see! Ha! Ha! Yes!" laughed the Squiggle Bug. "You do look a little like Santa Claus, but he only comes in December and this is now August."

"That makes a difference, of course."

"I brought some balloons," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "Well, now I am here and the next thing to do is to get down."

"And also get your airship down," said the bug.

"Oh, yes, my airship, of course," agreed Mr. Longears. "I don't want to lose that. It was lucky—I was helped by the birds, down into this soft Christmas tree with my airship, or we both might have been broken to bits. As it is I am quite comfortable. I can easily climb down. But it will not be so easy to lower my airship."

"No," said the Squiggle. "Perhaps a better way would be for you to come down, buy more balloons to fasten to your clothes basket and then it would rise up out of the tree and you could fly back home."

"That's a good idea I'll do it!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Thank you, Squiggle, for thinking of that."

It did not take Uncle Wiggily long to climb over the edge of the basket, step out on some of the branches of the Christmas tree and start to climb down to the ground. Of course this wasn't a regular Christmas tree, with lights, presents and all that. In fact it would not be a Christmas tree until December. But it was the beginning of one.

"Will you stay here and watch my airship while I go buy some new balloons to take the place of those the birds picked holes in?" asked the rabbit gentleman of the red-spotted bug.

"Surely I will," was the answer.

So Uncle Wiggily started off through the woods, up hill and down hill, looking for a place to buy new balloons. All of a sudden, when he was in a deep, dark, dismal place, he heard a voice saying:

"There he is now! Chase him!"

"Oh, my goodness!" thought the rabbit gentleman. "This must be one of the Bad Chaps. I'm going to hop fast!" So he hopped fast but he heard some one running after him calling:

"Stop! Stop! Wait!"

"No, I'm not going to stop!" answered the rabbit. "Oh, what a queer adventure this is!" he said. All of a sudden he tripped over a vine and fell. The next moment he heard some one saying:

"Here, Uncle Wiggily! I have brought you some new balloons for your airship!" And there was a jolly old monkey doodle gentleman with a bunch of red, green, blue, yellow and purple balloons.

"I saw your airship come down in the Christmas tree," chattered the monkey. "I thought you might want to buy some new balloons, so I came to sell you some. But you started to run and I had to run after you. I had my little monkey boy with me and he said to chase you, so I did and now I've caught you."

"Well, I'm glad you caught me and not one of the Bad Chaps," said the rabbit. Then he bought some new balloons, climbed up in the Christmas tree, fastened them on his airship when they rose up again as light as a feather. So Mr. Longears sailed home and all was well.

And if the bed spring doesn't jump up and down when the sheets are being a pillow fight, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Charlie Chick.

Physical Attraction Most Important Thing in Marriage? — Jobless Man Who Won't Let Fiancee Pay for Entertainment—Bored Eighteen

DEAR MISS DIX—Is sex attraction the most important thing in marriage? Are a woman's looks more important than anything else about her? My fiancée says that only the physical counts, but it seems to me that marriage is not just a physical thing. If I am wrong in my view, I want to change and make the best of life.

PUZZLED WIFE.
Answer—Probably physical attraction is the basis of marriage. It is the mysterious force that draws a man and woman together, but there has to be something more than that, something deeper and more lasting to hold them together and to make a marriage a real success.

For passion dies of satiety. A man's physical attractions fade. A woman's like a rose that has only a short day for its own. Sickness, worry, work, anxiety, time, all of the visible wear and tear of life slay the roses on the fairest cheek, dim the stars of the brightest eyes, rob even the most lissom figure of its willowiness, and if she has nothing to take the place of these charms when they are gone, then, indeed, is she sunk, and marriage becomes nothing but a dull entrance to her husband.

It is because men put the physical above the spiritual and the mental in picking out their wives that so many men weary of their lawful spouses and wander away from their own firesides. Because obviously if a man values only the physical he must be forever seeking fresh fields and fresher and younger and more beautiful women. And these men are wise never to marry, because no woman can hold them long; in their chasing after new sensations they strew their paths with the wrecks of women's lives and with alimony.

There are many women who have sex attraction for men, but who lack head and heart. You see many brainless little dolls that men flutter and like bees around a honeysuckle, but you cannot imagine any man of intelligence being happy with a wife of this type or living through forty or fifty years of contented wedlock with her.

No. The thing that counts most in the long pull of marriage is companionship. Congeniality. A man and woman having the same interests, thinking the same thoughts, enjoying the same things, having the same purpose in life.

For marriage, after the first wild rapture, settles down into the business life in which a man and woman must develop a sort of glorified friendship. They are to find life joyous together. They must be chums who can talk together by the hour without ever talking out. They must be comrades who have fought and played together. There must be a bond between them that engenders as the years go by, not one that weakens and snaps as soon as the life of youth dies down.

It is easy enough for any fairly good-looking woman to marry any man she sets her fancy upon. The hard thing to do is to hold him, and that is why it is far more important that the inside of a woman's head should be lavishly furnished than the outside made gorgeous.

For a man will weary in time of even a living picture, but the thing he never tires of is being entertained and amused and jolled along, and if you will cry at the middle-aged women you know whose husbands are still crazy about them, you will see that they are every one clever women. Not a fool, but a Dumb Dora in the lot of them.

The devoted husbands are all devoted to wives who have had sense enough to study them and understand them. Wives who have been able to meet them on their own ground with an entertaining line of conversation on the subjects they were absorbed in. They were wives who had sense enough to use some tact in getting along with their husbands and who never needlessly antagonized them. Wives who would take the trouble to manage their husbands, which means stepping around their peculiarities instead of bumping into them.

And they were wives who had enough intelligence to know that men get the bumps they want in the outside world and don't enjoy coming home a fight. Also, they have enough intelligence to know that all men are bound to have some woman look up to them and flatter them, and that if the wife can't do it, they will hunt up some other woman who will.

Undoubtedly sex counts in marriage. But so do brains and common sense and tact and a host of other qualities and, most of all, personality, which is really what we call "it" in a woman.

DEAR MISS DIX—Is it so very terrible for a man to accept money from a woman? In my case my fiancée is one of those unfortunate ones who has been born out of a position due to general economic conditions. Of course, he will land something eventually, but in the meantime why shouldn't I foot the bill for the entertainment we both enjoy immensely, as I am lucky enough to have an excellent position which pays a remarkable salary. Why, he even objects to driving my car if he can't buy the gasoline, and if I get theatre tickets we have a battle royal. Am I wrong in wanting to share my good fortune with him?

Answer—I think that under the circumstances your fiancée is foolish, but it is the kind of folly that makes you want to take off your hat to him, because it shows that he is a REAL man.

And, believe me, daughter, that kind of man is getting to be a rarity in these days of male parasites who graft off the thin little pocketbooks of working men. Why, I know plenty of young men who won't even deign to go out with girls unless she furnishes the car and the tickets and the "casts."

Still, there is sense and reason in all things and a man can overdo independence, especially just now when for a man to be out of work is no sign that he is a loafer and a dead beat, but is just the result of unheeded economic conditions. So I do not see why a youth who knows that when times change he will be back on the job and able to repay a girl tenfold for all that she had done for him should not be willing to take things from her that under other circumstances he might refuse. Especially when he reflects that he is depriving the girl as well as himself of a good time.

It takes more generosity to receive graciously than it does to give. I have a friend who has coined the phrase "strings receivers," by which she means one who does not receive things in the spirit in which they are given. Those who are grudging in their appreciation. Those who show that they hate to take and who can hardly bring themselves to say "thank you" and who spoil the pleasure of the giver by not having any pleasure in the gift. That phrase worth thinking over.

Your fiancée would gladly lavish anything he had on you. Tell him to realize that you are just as generous-hearted as he is and have just as much pleasure in making him happy as he would you, and perhaps you can make him see the matter from a human instead of a strictly masculine point of view.

DEAR MISS DIX—Why do the older generations use this phrase: "We never had that when we were young." Why are they also always throwing up to us all the time how hard they worked when they were young? These things seem to be their main conversation. Why is it?

Answer—Doubtless the old refer to these things because the difference between what they had when they were young and what the young have now is so great that it is a matter of constant amazement to them. Also, it is true that in olden times there were not so many soft snags for the young as there are now. But kindly reflect, my dear, that you bore the old just as much as they bore you. There are not many topics of mutual interest to eighteen and eighty.

Horoscope

FRIDAY, AUGUST 12, 1932

Conflicting planetary influences may be disturbing while this planetary government continues. According to astrology this is a day for cautious procedure. Women are believed to be more fortunate than men under this influence, which inclines to the enjoyment of the finer things in everyday life. There is a sign of good fortune for those who extend hospitality in the home and indulge in simpler pleasures. This rule should be favorable to domestic pursuits and should encourage women to the action of the household arts. Interior decoration is well ruled by the stars. Under this easy shopping should be lucky. The purchase of midsummer finery should bring to women added romances as the silly season draws to a close. There is a sign of promise for workers of every sort. Farmers now should glimpse good fortune, which will increase next year, the seeds of prosperity. While the government of the stars predicts there is fair promise for all who plan future activities or start them. Even the most modest beginnings should bring fruitful returns. This is a day to make one's own good luck. Dependence on any outside aid may be disappointing. It is not an auspicious day to seek employment. Men and women who have occupied places in the sun come under aspects that are disquieting at this time, when many changes in policies and standards are prearranged. Merchants and manufacturers should prepare for much unusual business in the coming year, astrologers declare. This is a day in which to be especially cautious in avoiding accidents. Persons whose birthdays it is have the augury of a year of temptation to spend

Peace River Road Advocated By People's Party Leader

"We need a Holy Trinity in British Columbia, not an unholy Trinity as we have now of fear, ignorance and suspicion, but a holy Trinity of scientific handling of currency, production and distribution," said J. E. Armishaw, leader of the People's Party, at a meeting held in the City Temple yesterday evening. The meeting, which was attended by about 600 people, was held for the purpose of organizing the People's Party in Victoria. Capt. T. Guy Sheppard, leader of the Government Reform Movement, announced at the meeting that his party had joined forces with the People's Party and would carry on under their banner.

Dr. Clem Davies, pastor of the City Temple, occupied the chair at the meeting and in his remarks stated that he could not see anything incongruous in making the church a focal point for public opinion. "It is blasphemy to speak of depression," he said. "There is no depression, but we are at a very great crisis at the present time."

John MacLean, the official organizer for the party, was the first speaker, and contended that it was time to take politics and the government out of the hands of the politicians and put it in the hands of the people. "We are entering into a new economic field," as Premier Bennett said the other day," he stated, "and I am looking forward to the day, which is coming soon, when we shall have an international co-operative Commonwealth of Nations."

Mr. Armishaw, president of the United Farmers Party in British Columbia, who is now in the ranks of the People's Party in a lengthy speech, dealt with certain portions of the party's platform. In dealing with the question of "cheap money," he said that if banks could obtain money from the Federal Government at a low rate of interest the provinces should be able to do so also. It was the first duty of the government to see that all the people were provided for, he stated, and if work with reasonable wages could not be given, full sustenance for a reasonably high standard of living should be provided. Speaking of the Kidd report, in the hands of the cabinet, he stated that when it was made public that it would be found that the debt of British Columbia would be far greater than the $142,000,000 reported to be.

In dealing with the question of unemployment, Mr. Armishaw said that the people were now in the teeth of the international money barons. As a cure for unemployment his party advocated the building of a highway from Prince George to the Peace River district, the speaker stated.

Royal Astronomical Party Leaves To-day For South En Route to Quebec

Concluding a four-day visit to Victoria, the Royal Astronomical group of scientists left this afternoon for Seattle. Before returning to Quebec for the eclipse of the sun on August 31, the party will visit the Mount Wilson observatory, Pasadena, Cal., which has a 100-inch telescope, the largest in the world.

Sir Frank Dyson, astronomer royal of Great Britain, and Lady Dyson will remain in Victoria for some days on holiday.

On September 10 the astronomers will sail by the liner Montcalm for Montreal for Europe.

Prior to departure to-day the visitors enjoyed a motor drive about the city. They expressed appreciation of the hospitality extended to them by the local centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada.

An informal gathering of the scientists was held yesterday afternoon at the Sanich Astrophysical observatory. Prof. Paul Helbronn of Paris, vice-president of the Astronomical Society of France and noted geodesist, who measured the Alps, contributed to the discussion and exhibited magnificent Alpine photographs, including a 25-ft. panorama of the Alps taken from the summit of Mont Blanc.

Dr. F. W. Aston, F.R.S., Trinity College, Cambridge, and winner of the Nobel Prize for chemistry, explained the discovery of the neutron, the constituent part of an atom released by the breaking up of an atom of beryllium. Remarkable results could be obtained in breaking up other substances into simpler forms with the enormous power which it was possible to impart to this new constituent, it was explained by Dr. Aston.

Dr. J. S. Plackett, director, gave the history of the Dominion Astrophysical observatory here; Dr. W. E. Harper spoke of the work being done in the study of "A" type stars, and Dr. J. A. Pearce, Dr. F. S. Hogg and Dr. C. S. Beals of the observatory staff, also contributed to the discussion. Mrs. W. E. Harper and Mrs. H. Boyd-Brydon presided at tea, assisted by Mrs. J. A. Pearce and Mrs. C. S. Beals.

The Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, through its president, F. H. Hughes, presented Lady Dyson, wife of the astronomer royal of Great Britain, with a set of photographic views of the beauty spots of the local society for the many kind-natures and courtesies shown to the party during its stay in the city. A similar set of photographs was presented to Miss Kathleen Williams, assistant secretary to the Royal Astronomical Society, who organized the Canadian tour.

Leading members of the visiting party were last evening entertained at dinner by Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Fordham Johnson at Government House, while others again visited the Sanich observatory to view the planet world.

Commission Dismisses Delmar Hodnett After Studying Inquiry Evidence

H. W. V. Pecknold Takes Over Chief's Duties

H. W. V. Pecknold took office this morning as chief of police of Esquimalt, following the dismissal yesterday evening of the former chief, Delmar Hodnett, by the Board of Police Commissioners.

Chief Hodnett was relieved of his duties after the commission had made a thorough study of the transcripts of evidence given in the recent inquiry held into allegations made by beer parlor proprietors that Chief Hodnett had asked them for money to go on his vacation.

No comment on the subject of the inquiry was made by Reeve Albert Head in the formal announcement of the commission's action, which came after a meeting held behind closed doors. It was stated, however, that the board had decided to send a copy of the evidence to the Attorney-General's department for consideration and any action deemed necessary. This action, it is believed, is a result of certain statements made by a witness during the inquiry regarding police administration in the municipality and collection of trades licenses.

VACANCY OCCURS
Constable Pecknold, who has been acting chief since the suspension of the former chief in the middle of July, was confirmed in the office after the dismissal motion was passed. The board also decided to call applications for the position of constable to fill the vacancy on the force.

Commissioners S. E. Bowden and J. E. Painter Jr., sat with Reeve Head and Municipal Solicitor Gerald H. Seder at the meeting yesterday evening. The evidence was read out and after discussion the formal action was taken.

ENDS HEARINGS
It brought to a conclusion a series of four sittings held by the board to consider the charges made by Thomas H. Hodson, proprietor of the Coach and Horses, to the effect that Chief Hodnett had sought a $500 donation from him toward his vacation expenses. The board supported the allegations. At the first sitting the declaration of Mr. Hodson was received, at the second evidence was heard and at the third further witnesses mentioned in the previous hearing were called. The final meeting yesterday evening was for the board's action.

Chief Hodnett had been with the department for nine years, taking office as chief after the death of John Acreman, the former head.

Chief Pecknold has had considerable police experience and has been three years with the Esquimalt department.

CRANLEIGH HOUSE HAS FINE RECORD

Completes Twelve Years of Successful Work

Cranleigh House, which has now completed twelve years of useful and highly successful work in Victoria, was founded in 1920, chiefly as a preparatory school for the Royal Canadian Naval College, then in operation in Esquimalt. The school later turned its attention to the B.C. matriculation and the entrance examinations of the British Public Schools and to the Royal Naval College at Dartmouth, and in this work has established a record of achievement of which it is justly proud.

Fully realizing the physical and moral value of school games, Cranleigh House offers ample opportunities in its own grounds of over two acres, with three tennis courts and a well-equipped gymnasium.

C. V. Milton, the headmaster, is well known in local sporting circles, having served on the governing body of soccer football, and being always willing to give his services to any movement for the furtherance of good sport in the community.

Kaye Don's Sister Enters Fast Races
Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times
London.—Ever since Mrs. E. Wisdom and Miss Joan Richmond won the Thousand Miles Race at Brooklands, hundreds of women have been clamoring to drive in a big race.

Among the new drivers, and one who drove in the women's race for the Duchess of York's Trophy, was Miss Rita Don, sister of the famous actor, Kaye Don. Mrs. Wisdom also drove again as well as Mrs. Barnato, the American bride of Captain Woolf Barnato.

The Duchess of York attended the race and presented the winning trophy to Miss E. Ellison.

ENO COMPANY'S BUSINESS GOOD

Maintains Earnings of $1-233,347 During 1931

Features of the 1931 report of International Proprietaries Limited are the maintenance of earnings at practically the same level attained in 1930 and 1929, and the cash balance at the end of 1930 of $738,508. Current liabilities were only $652,835.

In spite of lessened buying power of the public, increased tariffs in foreign countries and fluctuations in exchange, consolidated net profit from operations, after providing for depreciation and losses in exchange on all funds transferred, but before taxes, staff bonus and pension fund, and the usual write-off of organization expenses, amounts to $1,233,347 for the year 1931, compared with $1,234,213 for 1930.

REGULAR DIVIDENDS PAID

The regular dividend of $2.00 per share was paid to Class "A" shareholders during the year, together with participating dividends totaling 10 cents per share, making a total disbursement to Class "A" shareholders of $2.70 per share. Dividends totaling 80 cents per share were paid to Class "B" shareholders, and after provision for income taxes there remained a balance of profit for 1931 of $228,350, which was added to consolidated surplus account, which account now stands at $832,467, as at December 31, 1931. This represents that part of the consolidated surplus of the company and its subsidiaries which has been built up since the formation of International Proprietaries Limited in May, 1928.

FINANCIAL POSITION IS STRONG

The consolidated financial position shown as at December 30, 1931, was strong. Current assets were $2,556,322, as against current liabilities of $652,835, a ratio of 3.9 to 1. Cash alone amounted to $738,508. It is stated in the president's remarks that if all the net current assets of the company had been transferred to Canada at the end of 1931 there would have been a reduction of $183,700 in net current assets, but this would mean the abandonment of business in all parts of the world where the company does business.

SARAZEN OUT OF PRO EVENT

Rockville Centre, N.Y., Aug. 11.—Gene Sarazen's hopes for capping his United States and British open golf championships with a victory in the Professional Golf Association's tournament at St. Paul, August 31 to September 3, faded yesterday when he failed to place among the fourteen qualifiers from the Metropolitan district.

Sarazen, who turned down an invitation to compete at St. Paul without playing in the qualifying rounds, shot a 152 to finish in a seven-way tie for the last three positions. His par four on the first extra hole, however, was not good enough, Johnny Golden and Mike and Joe Turnesa carding 3's.

With the hope that one of the qualifiers will decide to withdraw, Sarazen, Leo Diegel, former P. G. A. champion, Tony Manero and Henry Miller, an unknown New Yorker, carried on Sarazen won on the third extra hole with only a slim chance of playing in the finals. There is a chance that Charles Lacey, assisting pro to Sarazen at Lakeville, might drop out, leaving the way open for Sarazen to compete for his third major title. Lacey shot a 150 yesterday. Sarazen never could get going, taking a 76 on both rounds. He had a chance for a 151 on the last hole, but took a six.

The gold occurs in a telluride in a sheared zone about sixteen feet wide and parallels the direction of the island. Elk Island is approximately 150 miles northeast of here.

LESS cost in running your car and far more pleasure in driving are yours the moment you start using 76. An extra advantage is that 76 is made in B.C.

1. NEW SMOOTHNESS—an even flow of power which ends jerks and vibrations which rack your motor and your nerves.

2. FINEST ANTI-KNOCK—76 eliminates audible and inaudible knocks—less wear on your motor.

3. GREATER POWER—Elimination of knocks gives full energy to your high-compression motor.

4. INCREASED MILEAGE—This increase in power, the elimination of knocks and new smoothness combine to bring greater mileage. Prove it for yourself today.

5. NO EXTRA COST—76 gives these advantages at the ordinary price. This is real economy.

6. MADE IN B.C.—These five advantages to yourself—benefits to other Canadians as well. 76 is made and distributed in this province by B.C. men and women.

on ManchuriaAssociated Press Tokio, Aug. 11.—Japan probably will not send a formal protest or representation to Washington over Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's New York speech of last Monday, it was said in official quarters today following a report on Ambassador Debutch's visit to Mr. Stimson in Washington yesterday.It was expected, however, that Baron Uchida, Foreign Minister, would take an early occasion to reply in general terms to Secretary Stimson's statements regarding Japanese aggression in Manchuria. The occasion probably will be the opening of the Diet session
August 22.The Manchurian question, as a topic of international discussion, flourished anew yesterday in a long conference in Washington between Henry L.
Stimson, U.S. Secretary of State, and Ambassador Debutch of Japan.In his speech in New York last Monday evening Mr. Stimson laid strong emphasis on the Kellogg-Brand Peace Pact as a vehicle for the nations of the world to rally around in mobilizing opinion against aggressive warfare.
The Jiji Shimpo, leading Tokyo daily newspaper, yesterday said:
"Secretary Stimson again has put into words of the most offensive character his dogmatic views, born of utter failure to understand Sino-Japanese relations."Chicago Gang

AND EDUCATIONDr. Coleman Tells Rotarians
University Is Growing Point
For DemocracyDeclaring that learning cannot develop except where a spirit of freedom prevails, that a university should be a growing point for democracy, and that the ideal of a university-to-day was to have the whole community seeking to understand the life in which it is set, Dr. H. T. J. Coleman of the University of British Columbia, this afternoon at the Empress Hotel gave the Rotary Club a review of the ideals which animate the modern university.He declared that the essential function of the university was to mediate between modern life and the past as recorded by history. The world had been entirely made over in the last fifty years, and business men now had to accept grave responsibilities they could not shrink. Outwardly the world of the twentieth century was vastly different from the nineteenth.
In Victoria there was a wholesome respect for the past and this attitude had been somewhat of a charge against the city. Professor Coleman considered, however, that this was an admirable attitude, as the life of the people was rooted in the past.The university had a similar attitude, and that fact had been quoted as a reproach. It had been stated that universities dealt with dead languages and past history. That wasCarry-over Of Wheat Smaller

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 11.—The carryover of wheat at the end of the crop year, July 31, was 130,948,961 bushels, compared with 134,078,963 last year, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported today.its duty, as a mediator between the past and the present.Dr. Coleman told of the break down of European civilization in the middle ages, under the impact of invasions by barbarians. He showed that universities began when youths flocked to certain places where learned men were able to instruct them.The first universities had two elements, a group of youths eager to learn and a group of teachers willing to instruct. "The past is not dead, it lives now, even as our ancestors live with our bodies, speak with our voices and think with our thoughts," he commented.There were two types of medieval university organizations. Some of the greater universities of students.
Dr. Coleman said the student hired the professors and fired them by the simple method of refusing to attend their lectures. They fired the professor if he did not lecture the full hour and they fired them if they did not fully cover the subject.There was a second type of university run by the professors and in modern times came a third type, financed and run by the state.
Dr. Coleman concluded by stating that the efficiency of the elementary and high schools depended upon the efficiency of the teacher, which in turn, depended upon the efficiency of the university.Harvard Grads

MIAMI JUDGE
BARS APPLAUSEWarns Spectators at W. N.
Lancaster Trial Against Demonstrations

Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Aug. 11.—Testimony that Haden Clarke, for whose slaying Captain W. N. Lancaster is on trial here, was a narcotic addict, that he frequently discussed suicide and that he suffered in New Orleans from an illness with which he was afflicted at the time of his death, was given today by J. J. Lavender, Clarke's former companion."He frequently discussed suicide with me," Lavender testified. He said they had been drinking companions in New Orleans, where Clarke was employed by a newspaper.The description of Clarke's habits followed completion, for the time at any rate, of examination of Captain Lancaster, and injection into the case of the attitude of spectators.

NO MORE APPLAUSE

Judge H. F. Atkinson ordered the jury from the courtroom while he delivered a warning against any further demonstrations. His comment was the result of applause and laughter yesterday when James M. Carson chief defense counsel, apparently won a verbal tilt with State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne.J. P. Moe, deputy United States marshal, testified M. G. Tanager, state witness, had threatened to kill Lancaster if they were placed in the same cell.The conversation took place Moe said, while Tanager was in federal custody on a charge of impersonating a naval officer. Tanager and Lancaster were associates in an unsuccessful aviation venture in the west.Tanager testified several days ago that Lancaster threatened to "get rid" of Clarke when he heard rumors Clarke had replaced him in the affections of Mrs. Keith-Miller, aviatrix, and companion of Lancaster on several notable flights. Lancaster, on the witness stand, denied making the threats, and Tanager denied he held any animosity against Lancaster.Examination of Pilot Lancaster today was brief. Hawthorne questioned the defendant closely regarding his financial affairs. Lancaster some time ago signed an affidavit that he was a pauper. In to-day's testimony he said he had given to Mrs. Keith-Miller, whom he described yesterday as "the woman I loved more than anything in the world," his share of $4,000 they had received for writing two statements for a news service.Lancaster was excused after twelve and a half hours on the stand.

DISCUSSED SUICIDE

Richard Richardson, a Miami writer, said he had twice heard Clarke discuss suicide, once about a year ago."Then Haden said the best method of suicide was by shooting," he testified."The second time was at the Keith-Miller home three weeks before his death. He repeated then that shooting was the best method of suicide.

We were talking about suicide attempts that had failed.""Haden said that if he ever committed suicide he was going to do it the right way and scientifically."

"Did he?" Hawthorne asked.

"That's it," was the reply.
Clarke told Richardson he used a certain narcotic and during March said he had found a place to buy the narcotic here, the witness said.Now Directs

Up For TrialVancouver, Aug. 11.—Ralph Taffert, merchant, and Robert Adkin, insurance adjuster, charged with conspiring with others to commit arson, were committed to-day by Police Magistrate
W. M. McKay for trial.The charge arises out of a fire which occurred June 21 in a house under construction on Churchill Street.William Haining and David Morris, charged with arson in connection with the same case, were previously committed for trial. Haining was a witness at the preliminary hearing of Adkin and Taffert and alleged they were the instigators. He admitted in the witness stand he had taken part in setting fire to the house.PRINCE'S HERD

THE SPORTS MIRROR Vancouver Scullers Coast Home To Win Their Opening Heat

Dunc McNaughton Defeats His Pal To Win Olympic Jump Title

Has Competed With Bob Van Osdel For Two Years in College Meets

Much Personal Feeling Entered in Major Baseball Races This Year

WHEN DUNCAN McNAUGHTON, Vancouver, won the running high jump for Canada at the Olympic Games, he had to defeat one of his best friends to do so. For two years McNaughton and Bob Van Osdel have been teammates, both competing in the running high jump for the University of California's intercollegiate championship team. Through such close association they became inseparable pals.

Then the other day in Olympic stadium the two friends met for the first time as competitors. McNaughton, jumping for Canada, Van Osdel for the United States. They tied for first place and in the jump-off McNaughton cleared the bar at 6 feet 5 1/2 inches to win. Van Osdel was awarded second place. During the two seasons these boys performed on the same team Van Osdel was rated the better. He was the one who generally scored the first place. During the crucial jump-off after the tie for first, the two boys appeared to be anything but bitter rivals. Before each jump, they would shake hands and each would wish the other luck. One wore a maple leaf and the other a shield, but in their hearts they were still teammates.

There is a sinister factor behind the battle of base hits in both major baseball leagues this year. The New York Yankees seem to be in, though the pitching hasn't been too steady during the last few weeks. However, there is one man who would love to win the game that knocked the Yankees out of the flag, and that is Roger Peckinpaugh, manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Peck has no grudge to Joe McCarthy, who is one of the best hitters of the managers, but away back in 1921, the Yanks pulled a fast one on Roger, and he hasn't forgotten.

Peck had been the Yanks' regular shortstop, and had helped the team to fight its way to the top. It seemed that several years ago the Yanks were just ahead. A few days before Christmas, a newspaper reported that Peck and his team had been traded to the Boston Red Sox and that the New York Yankees had traded him to Washington for Joe Dugan.

As it turned out, Peck was traded right out of his world series shares for the next two years. It is a wonder that, when the Indians recently swept five out of seven games from the league-leading Yanks, Peck enjoyed a good laugh.

Joe McCarthy would like to have the Chicago Cubs win the National League pennant so his team could get at them in the world series. Back in 1926 Joe took over the management of the Cubs. It was a mistake, for he had a bunch of little attention to discipline. He made the team a pennant winner in 1929.

Then, with the 1930 season only a week to go, and the Cubs in a slump, Charlie White tied a can on McCarthy, who at the time expressed the wish that some day he could repay the favor.

In 1927 the Pittsburgh Pirates won the National League pennant and was expected to be a team that would give the Yankees plenty of trouble. But the New York Yankees' row arose to the height of its surprising power in that series, and swept four straight from the Bucs. The club hasn't been the same since, but this year with what appears to be a strong team the Pirates are hoping to meet the Yankees in another world series.

TAIYOS WILL OPPOSE BUDS

Twilight Baseball League Clubs Clash in Important Game This Evening

Taiyos, Japanese ball nine, and the Rosebuds, second and third berth occupants, respectively, in the Twilight Baseball League, will clash in an important fixture at the Royal Athletic Park this evening at 8:15 o'clock, with the victor taking undisputed hold of second berth and a place in the play-offs.

Haley Jackson, who has yet to be defeated, will pitch for the Buds, and his teammates feel confident he can turn back the flashy Nipponese, who on Tuesday checked in with a 8 to 2 victory over the league-leading Eagles. Jackson has twice this season defeated the birdmen, being the first hurler capable of doing this in a league fixture.

Manager Kuwabara, Taiyos, is expected to send Ishida, youthful hurler, to the mound against the fast-stepping Rosebuds, while the remainder of the club will be the same as that which defeated the Eagles Tuesday.

Two British Columbia Youths Are Figured to Lift World Title for Canada in Saturday's Final Against U.S. Pair and One Other Crew; Hamilton Leanders Beaten by California Bears in Gruelling Race; Leanders Seek Place in Final in Second Race Today; Canadian Boxers Win

By ELMER DULMAGE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Los Angeles, Aug. 11.—Canada counted her lost men in Olympic rowing and boxing to-day and then decided she had good chances to snare some titles in both events.

Four Dominion rowing entries are very much in the running, even if three of them were beaten in their first starts. The Hamilton Leanders' eight, beaten nearly a length by California's Golden Bears in a gruelling struggle in the first heat of the Olympic championship, comes back to-day in a race with the Japanese and German crews, seeking the right to enter the final. They are virtually certain of making the grade.

The Golden Bears maintained their undefeated record by leading Leanders. In the other heat of the eight's Italy's crew scored a smashing upset by leading the English Cambridge crew to the finish.

Joe Wright Jr. of Toronto, who fell far behind in his first race on Tuesday, makes another bid to get into the final of the single sculls with Bobby Pearce, Australia's great sculler, who is defending his singles title, and Dick Southwood, Great Britain. Pearce and Southwood won their heats, but Wright has to race against giant Guillermo Douglas, Uruguay, and Bill Miller, United States. Wright seems to have a fair chance of a place in the final, for the first two in the loser's heat qualify.

The slender young fellows from Vancouver, Charles (Ned) Pratt and Noel D. Ayle, romped to a win in their first heat in the double sculls division and appeared to have a distinct edge over all entries in the race. The British Columbian loathed home in the comparatively fast time of 7 minutes and 35 seconds, with Mario Moretti and Orfeo Paroli, Italy, and Henrique Tomassini and Amador Goncalves, Brazil, outclassed.

The victory of twenty-year-old Pratt and his slightly-built twenty-two-year-old bow man brought Canada in line for at least one Olympic cup title.

U.S. PAIR WINS

The United States pair, Ken Meyer and Garret Gilmore, Philadelphia, won the second heat 7:14 3-5, but the Americans sprinted nearly the full distance and worked considerably harder than the Canadian boys. Pratt and D. Ayle earned the right to rest until Saturday, when the doubles final is to be rowed. The American pair also are in the final and another crew will gain a place in the rowoff between yesterday's losers.

The Canadian eight and Californians made a race of their own from the start, dropping New Zealand and Germany several feet behind with a stroke of the oars. The Canadian eight, led by Pratt and D. Ayle, won the first 100 metres. At the 200-metre mark the two boats were side by side, with New Zealand a quarter length back and Germany almost on even terms with the Antipodeans.

LEADERS IN FRONT

Leanders used the same high-speed stroke that won them the right to represent Canada at the Olympics. At 500 metres they were stroking like mad, while the United States pair were rowing at a steady pace. The Canadians went into a distinct lead at 650 metres, raising their stroke to thirty-eight, while the Americans were rowing at a steady pace. Pratt and D. Ayle were getting a much longer run on their boat.

Crowds along the bank of the inland salt water course, used for the first time yesterday, cheered wildly as the Golden Bears picked up their stroke to match that of Leanders. At 1,000 metres, halfway down the course, the United States boat was less than two yards ahead, but from that point on the American oarsmen seemed better able to keep up the pace. With short, effortless strokes, they pulled steadily away to a quarter-length lead at 1,500 metres and then staved off the last sprint of the Dominion's crew.

SPRINT FAIR

The Hamilton boat came forward in a flying sprint, propelled by oars that for more than 200 metres at a forty-two-stroke-a-minute clip, but the Bears were safely in, crossing the line a full half length ahead. The strong finish by both the German and New Zealand boats made the finish a blanket affair, though Germany was about three-quarters of a length back of the Leander shell, with New Zealand another half length back.

The United States' time was 6:29; Germany, 6:38 4-5; and New Zealand, 6:38 1-5. Considered likely to win the first eight heat in easy fashion, the British crew were beaten by Italy, with Japan third and Brazil fourth.

The battling Micmacs and the United States in an effort to gain the final of the four-oar without coxswain championship. The Micmacs are generally expected to qualify with ease. Yesterday they were beaten by Italy in exceptionally fast time. The British four took the other heat.

CANADIAN BOXERS WIN

Canadians won in quarter-finals of bantam and lightweight Olympic boxing championships yesterday evening, although they failed in the lightweight division. George Maughan, Montreal, won his quarter-final against Germany, going into the semi-finals of the heavyweight division. Horace "Lefty" York, Toronto, bantam, with a flick of left hooks, gained the decision over Victor Mills, Italy, thereby registering the first setback for the classy Italian team which is defending the team boxing championship. Frank Genovesi, Toronto, lightweight, who hammered out a preliminary victory over his Argentine opponent on Tuesday, was defeated by Bian-

Heisterman Wins at Twenty-first in Tournament Marathon; Col. J. P. Fell, Vancouver, Wins Again and Carries Canada's Colors in Grand

Under perfect weather conditions, with the sun shining and the atmosphere cool, semi-finals in the Grand Championship, Classes A, B, C and D and the first, second and third flights were reached in the tenth annual Seniors' Northwest Golf Association Tournament yesterday.

Play to-day and to-morrow will determine whether the Barnard Cup, emblematic of the grand championship, will rest on a shelf in Vancouver, Seattle, Aberdeen, Wash., or Portland, and more specifically in the homes of Col. J. P. Fell, Joshua Green, J. H. Fuller or J. A. Byrley.

Though Victoria has been unable to get one of its representatives past the first round of the grand championship, the home town has one entrant or more in each of the class championship, and the flights, and it is expected some of the handsome silverware will remain behind for the ensuing year.

In Class A, Victoria has that staunch golfing veteran, R. W. Gibson, to carry its colors. He defeated his townsman, Fane Sewell, 4 and 3, to enter the semi-final.

In Class B, an all-Canadian final is assured, with two Victorians and two Vancouverites left in the running. The Victorians are Judge P. L. Lampan and Joe Wilson, and the Vancouverites are W. G. Conway (Vancouver) defeated E. H. Hubert (Seattle), 2 and 1; H. G. Griggs (Tacoma) defeated B. T. Iyer (Seattle), 3 and 2; J. B. Fiske (Seaside) won from J. S. Baker (Tacoma) by default.

MISS LEEMING SEEDED THIRD AT VANCOUVER

Victoria Tennis Player Placed High in List of United States Championship

New York, Aug. 11.—Marjorie Leeming, Victoria, runner-up to Olive Wade in the recent Canadian championships, heads a Canadian entry list of three in the United States women's tennis championship, beginning Monday at Forest Hills, Long Island.

Miss Leeming was seeded third in the foreign list behind Mrs. Elsie Goldsack Pittman and Joan Ridley, both of England. Helen Jacobs, favorite for the title, was seeded No. 1 in the domestic list followed by Mrs. L. A. Harper.

Mrs. K. J. Selmond and Jean Adele Burritt, both of Toronto, are the other Canadian entries.

Mrs. Selmond and Miss Leeming both have what appear to be easy first-round matches, but Miss Burritt goes against Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke, Stamford, Conn., assumed international player and a dangerous opponent for any of the women.

Helen Jacobs, who played the princess to Helen Wills Moody's queen on the tennis courts of the world for several years, seems at last to have found a golden opportunity to win a national championship.

MRS. MOODY NOT ENTERED

She heads the list of sixty-four entries for the women's play, beginning Monday at Forest Hills, facing practically the same field she defeated in winning the Sebring and Easthampton tournaments recently. Mrs. Moody will not defend her title, preferring to remain in Paris and study painting.

Mrs. L. Harper, Los Angeles, is seeded second in the domestic list, followed by the two English women, Mrs. Elsie Goldsack Pittman and Joan Ridley, heading the foreign list in that order, followed by Marjorie Leeming, Victoria, former Canadian titleholder.

J.B.A.A. CREW SUFFERS DEFEAT

Victoria Doubles Beaten By Kelowna Crew in Annual Interior Regatta

Kelowna, Aug. 11.—With thirty-two of the sixty-eight events on the two-day programme run off, the twenty-sixth renewal of the Kelowna Regatta, got under way yesterday. Most of the events yesterday featured junior aquatic stars.

The crack J.B.A.A. crew from Vancouver Island bowed to the Kelowna crew in the doubles rowing events, the interior crew winning by four lengths in 4:00 over the mile course in the first heat of that event. In the other senior doubles heat, Butler and Jagger, Vancouver, beat out Meek and Lucas, Nelson, by three lengths in 6:30.

J. Burns, Wenatchee, Wash., captured the mile swim in 25:12, the fastest time made in this event in Kelowna in years. The Washington star came back later to win his heat in the 100

Pirates Shatter Losing Streak To Hold First Place

After Dropping Ten Straight Games Pittsburgh Captures First Game of Double-header With Boston - Hold Lead in National League; Chicago Cubs Idle Brooklyn Wins Pair From Cincinnati; Philadelphia Regains Second Place in American

While Chicago was kept idle by rain yesterday, Pittsburgh broke its ten-game losing streak with a 5-to-2 victory over the Boston Braves in the first half of a double-header and thus kept their hold on first place. They followed it by losing a heart breaker, 3 to 2, when home runs by Berger and Schulerich gave the Braves the decision, although Larry French allowed them only four hits.

Brooklyn took two games from the Cincinnati Reds; 6 to 1 and 10 to 1 in thirteen innings, to make it four teen victories in eighteen starts and to finish their climb from seventh place to fourth.

The St. Louis Cardinals complete the downfall of the Phillies with a 11-to-5 victory, their fourth straight over the Phils.

Philadelphia's Athletics capture second place in the American League by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 3, while rain held Washington and Cleveland idle.

Young Tommy Bridges hurled Detroit to a 6-to-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The Newark Bears yesterday trim the Montreal Royals twice in the International League, routing Left Claret and Walter Brown, the Royal pitching ace, to win the opener 5 to 0 and the nightcap 3 to 2.

The Baltimore Orioles played their third successive extra inning contest losing to Toronto 11 to 9 in eleven innings. The second game was postponed on account of rain.

In a free hitting contest, the Bison defeated Jersey City 7 to 6.

The night game between Rochester and Albany was postponed because of rain.

Boston, Aug. 11.—Home runs by Berger and Schulerich gave the Braves a 3 to 2 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the second game of a double-header yesterday after the league leaders had broken a ten-game losing streak by winning the opener, 6 to 2. French held the Braves to four hits in the second game, while the Pirates found Brandt for nine, but the two circuit blows, plus a squeeze play gave Boston the edge.

First game—P. H. E. Pittsburgh 6-10-1; Boston 2-10-0. Batteries—Meine and Grace; Zachary, Frankhouse and Hargrave. Second game—P. H. E. Pittsburgh 3-9-1; Boston 2-9-4. Batteries—French and Padden; Brandt and Spohrer.

Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—St. Louis bats broke out in a sudden barrage of hits in the eleventh inning yesterday and the Cardinals scored their fourth straight victory over the Phillies, 11 to 5.

The Phillies tallied five runs in the first inning to gain an early lead after the Cards had scored three, but the champions tied up the game in the fifth and then went on to score six runs in the eleventh. Chuck Klein rapped out the third-inning home run of the season in the first inning.

St. Louis 11-6-0; Philadelphia 5-15-1. Batteries—Clemens and Egan; McCusker, Rhem, Holley and V. Davies, Todd.

Brooklyn, Aug. 11.—The Dodgers battled the lowly Cincinnati Reds for twenty-two innings and 4 hours and 53 minutes of actual playing time yesterday, but they finally came through to win two games, 6 to 1 and 10 to 9, and wind up only one game behind third-place Boston Braves. The second game was the long one, going thirteen

Brooklyn had little or no trouble winning the opener behind Van Lingle Mungo's six-hit hurling, but the second was an entirely different matter. The only likeness was that Frank O'Doul was a big figure in both games. He clouted two home runs in the first and scored the winning run in the second.

First game—P. H. E. Brooklyn 6-10-1; Cincinnati 2-9-4. Batteries—Lucas and Lombardi; Mungo and Lopez. Second game—P. H. E. Brooklyn 10-15-2; Cincinnati 9-15-4. Batteries—Koop, Johnson and Asby; Clarke, Moore, Shaute, Quinn, Vance and Lopez.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 11.—Young Johnny Allen chalked up his tenth victory of the season against two defeats yesterday with a nice job of relief pitching that enabled the league-leading New York Yankees to defeat the Browns, 7 to 6, and sweep the four-game series.

Allen relieved Pennock in the third and gave only five hits in the remaining innings. The Yanks wasted a lot of base hits, getting seventeen, blows and having seventeen left on base. They scored their winning run in the eighth on a pass to Gehrig and singles by Lazzeri and Chapman.

New York 7-17-0; St. Louis 6-10-1. Batteries—Pennock, Allen and Dickey; Blalocher, Hadley and Ferrell.

Detroit, Aug. 11.—Detroit made it four in a row over Boston by winning the final game of the series with the Red Sox, 6 to 2 yesterday. It was Boston's eleventh straight defeat.

Tommy Bridges, who allowed only one Washington player to reach first base in his last appearance in the box, was held to-day and was saved from a rout only by excellent support. Although he allowed but three hits, he

B.C. Champion In Thrilling Victory After Extra Holes

Seventeen-year-old Vancouver Player Eliminates Phil Farley, Toronto, at Thirty-eighth Hole in National Tourney; Jimmy Bell, Vancouver, Drops Tough Match to Jack Nash; Somerville Extended to Defeat Bobby Reith, Manitoba Champion, 2 and 1

Lambton Golf Club, Toronto, Aug. 11.—Second obstacle in the leading to his fifth Canadian amateur golf championship successfully behind him after a bruising fray, Ross "Sandy" Somerville, London, Ont., faced a tough proposition today in the third round of match play over thirty-six holes. Tall Francis an, Detroit, whose stylish swing brings him birdies and par with all effort, balked before the solemn-countenanced champion of the tournament parade grounds.

Agassiz, eighteen-year-old, Frank, Agassiz, Ottawa, in the first round, Bobby Reith, seventeen, Winnipeg, the second, Somerville's greater experience proved a factor. But Ryan's tournament background and is not to be subject to the nerve-strain of being a champion. The American was to par throughout Wednesday's play in defeating T. McAtthey, Montreal, 4 to 3, and a royal battle would ensue to be on the card for today. Every one of the quarter final matches should prove equally interesting. Will Gunn Jr., par-buster from Allingford, Pa., who many concede a better-than-even chance of reaching the final, faces Jack Nash, young up mate of Somerville and Ontario champion three seasons back.

LEONARD MEETS TAYLOR
Stan Leonard, teen-aged wearer of a British Columbia amateur crown, meets Gordon Taylor, Montreal, in another even-looking fight, while the her match brings together two Torontonians who have displayed smart play throughout the tourney, Jack Cameron and Bill Eckhardt. The creditable showing Reith made against the youthful-veteran linkman on London, Ont., was best told by Andy's slim winning figures, 2 up and to play. Steady pars streaked from Gunn's clubs for twenty-seven holes, and he gave his opponent, Joe Bydolek, Buffalo, N.Y., never a chance to keep ahead. Even par for the set figures of 1 out and 36 in for the course, and "Will" went to lunch 6 up. In the afternoon the Pennsylvanian toured the course in 34 again, and the battle was over with the tally 10 and 9 against Bydolek, who suffered from a altering putter.

BRILLIANT PUTTING
Another putter—that of Stan Leonard—was the star of the tourney, but it was a funeral dirge for his opponent, Phil Farley, Toronto. After a morning round that ended with the starter 1 up, Stan, who has bulging muscles for a non-too-big seventeen-year-old, followed up his lengthy drives with eleven one-putt greens in twenty holes of play.

Farley showed a stout heart to stick to his foe, and the fight that resulted produced the marathon battle of the day. One up as he poised to drive on the home hole, the Pacific coast youth seemed a winner, but his long tee shot hooked into a flower bed, and the penalty Stan incurred for picking his ball out of the flowers, set him the lead and sent the match into extra holes. They halved the 25-yard first with par fours. The next, a 170-yarder with a green flanked by ominous sand traps and skirted at the rear by young pine trees, settled the issue. Farley's mashie iron found the tiny trees, and he had to pick out Stan was ten feet from the pin in the end, and as his putt eased toward the cup, certain of dropping, Farley kicked it up, conceding his opponent a birdie and the game.

BIG SURPRISE
Elimination of Don Carrick, Toronto, the Dominion's amateur king in 1929 and 1926, by Gordon Taylor, Montreal, and Jack Cameron's par-smashing display to rub E. Innes, a Scot transplanted in Montreal, out of the picture, helped make the day pulsating. The fight Carrick was making to regain the top after being out of competitive golf for two years, smashed on the impregnable rock that was Taylor's short game.

The Cameron-Innes fight score read: Innes two up, after the first half of the day's play. Their approximate medal cards for that journey were: Cameron, 73; Innes, 74. The veteran Toronto shooter emerged a 2-and-1 winner. Jack Nash accomplished his London debut, the solemn Somerville, into the quarter-finals by whipping Jimmy Bell, Vancouver, by 4 and 2. Ever-smiling Jimmy fought his opponent, a former Ontario monarch, all square through the morning round and steved by par going out in the afternoon to go 1 up at the turn. As they marched up to the tenth, rain almost hid the green from view. Nash proved a mud horse by shooting a birdie and two pars for three straight wins and a lead the British Columbia aspirant could not erase.

POOR SHORT GAME
Poor work around the greens cost T. G. McAtthey, Montreal, any chance he had of keeping up with Francis Ryan, stylish Detroit club-swinging. The American went 4 up in the morning, shooting an approximate 76 to the homebred's 79. In the afternoon trip, McAtthey matched Ryan's sound play, but was unable to eat into the margin against him and went out by 4 and 2. Few looked for Eckhardt to eliminate his fellow Toronto player, Hoblitzel, who was playing over his home course. Longer hitting by Eckhardt, in the afternoon, pinned a 4 and 3 defeat on the man who is usually close to the top in any tourney.

Rattling eleven hits, including two for extra bases, off the combined offerings of Ray Parfitt and Lloyd Cann, the Green Mill regained first place in the Senior Amateur Baseball League, yesterday evening at the Royal Athletic Park, by scoring a 9-to-4 victory over the Sons of Canada. The defeat dropped the latter out of first position and robbed them of a chance to gain a bye in the play-offs. The Sons have a chance to go back in the lead Friday night when they meet the Elks in a postponed fixture.

The Green Mill won yesterday evening's game in the first two innings. Parfitt pulled himself in the middle of the third inning, being replaced by "boners" gave them seven runs. Parfitt pulled himself in the middle of the third inning, being replaced by

Clunk Shoots 69 For Course Mark

Slicing seven strokes from par, Freddie Clunk, rising young pro at the Gorge Vale Golf Club, established a new course record for his home links yesterday when he toured the nine hole lay-out in 69. Clunk was playing with Thomas Angus and C. F. Smith at the time of his feat. Clunk was out in 37, one under par, and back in 32, six under perfect figures. He had four birdies and an eagle on the second nine.

Clunk's card follows, along with par for the course:

Cann. The Green Mill secured nine hits and eight runs off Parfitt and two hits and one run off Cann. Parfitt struck out two and Cann three.

Leo Holden pitched for the Green Mill and was touched up for seven hits, while he struck out five.

The Sons turned in a "spotty" exhibition, five errors being chalked up against them, Jack Bacon, their usually efficient backstop, being the worst offender with two.

The Sons started the procession of runs in the first inning. Campbell, first batter to face Holden, grounded out Holden to Steele. Haines lined the ball through shortstop for a single. Bacon followed with a smash past second for a single. Haines stopping at second. Holman beat out a scratch hit down third base line, filling the bases. Hilton struck out. Holden lost his control for a time, walking Doherty, forcing home Haines for the first run of the game. A wild pitch

CAFEMEN GET FOUR

In their half of the inning the Green Mill came back with a vengeance to push four runners across the plate. Love got a life at first when Bacon missed his third strike, the ball hitting the grandstand. Easter lifted a Texas Leaguer in behind second for a safe hit. Brousseau beat out a hit to Craig filling the bases. Bridge-

The second inning saw the Sons score one more run. Craig singled to left field and was sacrificed to second by Parfitt. He went to third on another wild pitch by Holden, and scored when Steel fumbled. Nex's throw on Campbell's grounder. It was a bad error, the first baseman dropping the ball after getting it in his

Whether you change oil every 500 miles or every 2,500 miles, you will get better results with the New Marvelube. Most Automobile manufacturers recommend changing oil every 500 miles because oil gets dirty in use and accumulates road grit and other injurious substances.

It is better because it is purer. Better at high temperatures because there is nothing in it to break down or disintegrate. It is all oil. Better at low temperatures because those properties which make oil sluggish when cold have been removed. Better under constant punishment because those compounds which cause carbon, gum and sludge to form in motors have been eliminated. You can see its purity. It is clear, clean, golden. No other oil is pure enough for your car.
